Lad Who Dodged Franks' Fate Testifies

FRIGHT IS SHOWN BY WITNESS

Boy Bolts From Court When Leopold Attempts to Extend Greeting

STATE PLANS TO CLOSE CASE SOON

Darrow to Call Parents of Slaying In Effort to Prove Insanity

(By United Press Leased Wire) CRIMINAL COURT, CHICAGO, July 28.—A handsome, sun-burned boy of nine and a half years, still shuddering from his narrow escape from the fate which overtook Robert Franks, 14, testified today at the judicial hearing of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb.

The witness was John Levinson son of Sol Levinson, millionaire corporation lawyer of Chicago. Leopold and Loeb marked him for their victim, but by a turn of fate Levinson escaped.

Loeb, reconnoitering the play ground of the Harvard school in search of a prospective victim accosted Levinson, Loeb went back and reported to Leopold and they decided to use him as a subject in their search for a "thrill." But John, leaving for home earlier than the youth expected, and going down an alley instead of the street they expected, escaped them.

Makes Long Trip
The young witness was briefly cross examined by Benjamin Bachrach, one of the defense lawyers, who brought out the fact that John had been brought all the way from his father's summer home in northern Maine for the purpose of testifying in the trial and was going to return east as soon as he finished.

When the boy left the stand he shook hands with Bachrach. As he passed Leopold and Loeb, both smiled pleasantly at him, and Nathan leaned forward with a greeting.

John shrank away from him, lifting his left hand, as though to push away some horrible vision and almost bolted down the aisle.

State's Attorney Crowe, personally prosecuting the case, having presented most of his major testimony, is rounding up the odds and ends, and may close the state's case late today.

May Ask Delay
Should the state's case be completed this afternoon chief defense attorney Clarence Darrow was expected to request adjournment until Wednesday, allowing him an extra day to rearrange the defense case. Darrow said this was necessary because of the premature publication in a Chicago morning paper of the medical report prepared by defense alienists.

Crowe characterized the defense physical examination report as "piffle" and said he probably would pay no attention to it.

Students of the University of Michigan and University of Chicago called by the defense are: Max Schreyer and Elide Kolb of Michigan, and Theodore Schimberg, Jerome Greenberg, Seymour Berkson, Howard Mayer and Frederick Loeb, of Chicago. Loeb is not a relative of the defendant. It is said that the testimony of these former schoolmates of Loeb and Leopold will be used in an attempt to prove "mental insanity."

Will Call Parents
All members of the millionaire Leopold and Loeb families—including the parents—will take the witness stand and bare all the intimate details of the lives of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb in a desperate effort to save the youths from the gallows for the murder of Robert Franks, it was decided today.

The two young slayers themselves are not expected to take the stand, however, unless some unexpected situation develops. The defense attorneys feel that the boys could add little or nothing to their own defense.

A long conference of defense attorneys, alienists and members of the two families at the home of Clarence Darrow, chief defense attorney, lasting until 2

The infantry and signal corps units will train at Del Monte and the artillerymen will go to Camp Lewis.

REBEL BAND FACES FALL IN BRAZIL

Federal Troops Make Smashing Gains In Drive Against Sao Paulo Uprising.

BUENOS AIRES, July 28.—Brazilian federal forces have won an important victory in Sao Paulo, according to reliable advices to the United Press here today.

While the extent of the victory is not entirely clear, it is indicated that a majority of the city of Sao Paulo may have fallen into federal hands and that final defeat of the rebels, who have been revolting since midnight, July 4, is at hand.

The position of the rebel forces has been desperate for the last two weeks. Surrounded on three sides, they were cut off, completely from the sea and from all munitions shipments.

THREE IN JAIL AS INSURANCE PLOT FAILS

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Charged with plotting to defraud an insurance company of $20,000 by staging a fake drowning, John D. Wiley, of this city, his wife, Nellie D. Wiley, and W. M. George, insurance adjuster, were taken into custody today and questioned at the district attorney's office.

The Wiley were arrested at San Pedro as they stepped from a Catalina boat. Wiley, according to a report from the island resort yesterday, published in morning papers, was supposed to have been drowned from a speedy launch during a trip around Catalina Bay.

Accompanied by photographs and transcripts of conversation, the trio, together with Howard J. Hughes, a real estate man arrested later as an accomplice, have made complete confessions, the district attorney's office reported.

The plot has been hatching for weeks. Wiley, who has several aliases, took out a $10,000 life insurance policy. George, it is claimed, also took out a similar policy on Wiley's life, and entered into the scheme to secure the money.

Cork Leg Balks Owner In Effort To End Own Life

NEW YORK, July 28.—When Russell B. Hayward, 39 years old, respondent over failure to overcome the drug habit, decided to drown himself, he forgot about his cork leg and it saved his life.

Hundreds were walking through Battery park or standing at the sea wall viewing the harbor when Hayward took a header from the battery into the bay.

His cork leg brought him quickly to the surface and defeated his effort to sink. James Weiber of Brooklyn, who has a stand for renting marine glasses, saw the cork leg bobbing around and went overboard without removing any of his clothing.

When he swam out to Hayward he had a difficult time because the drowning man, by poking him with the artificial limb, was able to keep him at a distance. Finally, however, he succeeded in overpowered him and, catching a line tossed from an excursion boat, pulled him to safety.

Republicans See Good Times As Issue As Farmers Taking Profit

(By United Press Leased Wire) WASHINGTON, July 28.—After weeks of groping for a winning issue, Republican leaders today became more and more convinced that the presidential campaign will be determined by one fundamental economic issue—good times.

While Democratic and Independent leaders contend that many other issues will enter into the campaign, they concede that the material prosperity of the country is always a controlling factor in presidential elections. They also concede that good times would give the Republicans a big advantage.

As one astute Democratic politician observed, it is the issue that touches the pocket nerve of the voter which usually guides his hand in casting his ballot.

Farmers Profiting
But there is a fierce battle in the rival political camps as to whether the country is on the verge of good times. The Republicans point to the rise in grain and hog prices, the best indication that agriculture—a fundamental industry—is due for complete rehabilitation.

Democratic and Independent leaders scout the report that farmers are again rolling in wealth. They point out that the farmers have largely passed out of the advance in price as chiefly benefitting the speculators.

Secretary Wallace told the United Press today that farmers in Kansas, where winter wheat is being harvested, are the only ones to benefit by the soaring prices. Since most farmers feed 80 per cent of their corn to hogs, he said, the $2 rise in hog prices was benefitting farmers generally.

Industry on Decline
While grain prices are bringing jubilation to the Republican leaders, the gloomy picture of lower production in basic industries and declining factory employment painted in the latest federal reserve board statement is worrying them. The Democrats and Independents believe slackening business will blast the Republican campaign cry of "prosperity and decline."

Republican leaders regard the depression as merely seasonal and say business will pick up in the fall.

BIRDMEN TEST PLANES FOR SEA FLIGHT

(By United Press Leased Wire) BROUGH, England, July 28.—The American world flyers tested their planes today preparatory to hopping off Wednesday for the Orkneys whence they will cross the Atlantic via Iceland and Greenland, homeward bound.

LONDON, July 28.—The Italian airman, Locatelli, who set out from Pisa, Friday morning to join the American world flyers at Brough and accompany them across the Atlantic, has been located some 48 hours later near Marseilles, according to today's Daily Telegraph.

LYONS, France, July 28.—Major Petro Zanni, Argentine airman who is setting out on a world flight, continues to encounter the worst possible weather conditions. Driven back last evening when he attempted to go from Lyons to Rome, the flyer set out today for the Italian capital.

Zanni, who started from Amsterdam and reached Paris Saturday, arrived here at 1:35 p. m. Sunday.

CANADIANS RETURNING

WINNIPEG, Manitoba.—Five thousand Canadians were returning monthly from the United States, according to government officials here. No definite figures have been kept by the government in the past regarding returning Canadians, but in the last few months an accurate record has been kept, which shows that a surprisingly large number of Canadians are returning.

Slaying of American and Insult to Wife May Bring Break, Threat

(By United Press Leased Wire) WASHINGTON, July 28.—The United States government today warned Persia that it may break off relations with the Tehran government if satisfaction is not obtained for the murder of Robert W. Imbrie, American vice consul.

The American note of protest, made public today by the state department, declared that "reparations should be made for the killing of Imbrie and that punishment should be meted out to the guilty."

The note demands that "assurance be given and enforced of adequate protection for the lives of American citizens and that the safety of its officials (of the American government) in Persia should be guaranteed."

In the note delivered to the Persian government, the United States made further vigorous representations because of insults to Imbrie's widow on the streets of Teheran, the state department also announced.

The warning of a break in relations with Persia was contained in the concluding paragraph of the note.

"The maintenance of relations between countries is primarily dependent upon accordance of adequate protection to their respective nationals and to their official privileges," this passage of the note said.

"This government feels that the continuance of its diplomatic and consular representatives in Persia will be dependent upon the action which the Persian government may take in this case. It confidently awaits such action to supplant the steps already taken by the Persian government. It cannot overemphasize the seriousness of the view which is taken of the present situation."

OTTAWA, Ont., July 28.—Pandemonium reigned here when 13,000 persons crowded into the Auditorium concert hall to attend the annual public school concert.

Children were separated from their parents and the little actors and actresses, numbering 3,000, were lost in the crowd.

Tammany's New Chief

From the Literary Digest

The most famous—and at one time considered the most infamous—political machine in the world has a new "boss." The Wigwam again has a "big chief" in the person of Judge George Washington Olvany of the court of general sessions, a long-time member of the organization and a close friend of the late Charles F. Murphy.

Of course, observes the New York Sun, "Olvany will sit at the head of the council table, but he will not be the boss of Tammany Hall in the sense that Tweed, Kelly, Croker and Murphy were. For the real boss is Governor Smith."

"This means," according to the Brooklyn Times, "that the governor, and not William R. Hearst, will be the dispenser of the next mayoralty nomination." The new Tammany situation, in the opinion of the Buffalo Express, "is of interest in state and national politics, for Hearst is openly attacking the nomination of John W. Davis, and Mayor Hylan, of New York, has not yet endorsed it."

The first important announcement of the new leader was that Governor Smith would be a candidate to succeed himself. Of himself and his new position, Judge Olvany said in a statement:

"Within the next few days I shall resign as judge and undertake to carry on the work so ably, unselfishly and successfully performed by Charles F. Murphy for more than twenty-two years."

Under Mr. Murphy's guidance Tammany represented progressive Democracy, with honorable and honest public service as its chief concern. The chief purpose will be to continue to deserve the public confidence that it has reposed in us. I am willing to work. I shall always be willing to listen to and receive advice. With God's help, I will always do the best I can."

In the opinion of Louis Seibold, the New York Evening Post's experienced political writer:

"The qualities that probably had most to do with the elevation of Olvany to the seat of boss were an excellent reputation for integrity, a deep and earnest sympathy with the purposes of historical, as well as political, Tammany, and his popularity with the group of elder statesmen, who in combination with Governor Al Smith hold the balance of power. If six-foot-two of brawn and a brown, healthy face with a genuine Tammany jaw mean anything, George Olvany is going to remain leader for a long time."

"Olvany, a first-rate lawyer, better equipped in education than was Murphy, will of course have to fight for the supremacy which Murphy gained."

"His career may turn out to be either a prolonged celebration—or a wake. That, too, depends upon the exigencies that develop in the swiftly moving game of politics as played in Tammany."

Bryan Opposes Industrial Mobilization

LINCOLN, Neb., July 28.—Gov. Charles W. Bryan democratic vice-presidential nominee, today flatly refused to join in the mobilization request of the army for summoning of industrial and civic forces to test their strength on September 12.

"I will co-operate in every way with the mobilization of federal and state armed forces," Gov. Bryan told the United Press, "but I do not think it is the proper thing to ask industrial workers and farmers to lay aside their work on that day, however."

More than that, mobilization of industrial and civic workers would give the wrong aspect of the day to the world—at a time when we are trying to create world peace."

DUNLAP WILL GO ON TRIAL ON AUGUST 18

Notorious "Badge Bandit" Loses Opening Round as Court Upholds Indictments.

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Harry J. Dunlap, "badge bandit," will go on trial for his life August 18.

Judge Charles S. Crail today set that date as the time for the trial to open after overruling defense attorney Goldens' plea to quash the indictment under which Dunlap is held.

The court held that the indictment, with its four charges of murder, assault and robbery, was proper in form and could not be killed.

Efforts of the defense to have the case set for a later date were denied, the court deciding that if all defense witnesses cannot be brought here by the time designated, a postponement may be permitted them.

LONDON, July 28.—With the Anglo-American banking group apparently having won its point and Premier Herriot of France agreeable to promising economic and military evacuation of the Ruhr, the interallied reparations conference met in plenary session at the foreign office this afternoon with the delegates in high hopes of reaching an agreement.

American delegates were prepared to take a leading part as the conference opened. Informal intervention by Secretary of State Hughes was reported to have effected an important compromise. Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury had been closeted for some time with Premier Herriot. The two Americans were taking no official part in the deliberations, but their weight was felt, delegates said.

It was understood as the delegates arrived at the foreign office in high spirits, that Herriot had capitulated and agreed to promise evacuation of the Ruhr, in return for which the banking group would approve the conditions of the international loan to Germany and it would be possible to proceed with the setting in motion of the machinery of the experts' plan.

This disagreement, between the bankers and the French, was what so long delayed the conference from getting down to business.

RESCUE MAN SWIMS FOR FIRST TIME

Girl Taunting Sweetheart Previously Is Carried Unconscious to Land

Taunting her sweetheart because of his inability to swim, Miss Muriel Wishart, 19, of Redlands, said to be an expert swimmer, plunged into the surf at the foot of Thirty-sixth street, Newport Beach, yesterday afternoon. Fifteen minutes later she was carried ashore, unconscious, in the arms of her fiancé, Edward P. Dillinger, also of Redlands. She was resuscitated.

Dillinger, who had never before been able to swim, defied the waters of the Pacific and in the emergency rose to the occasion and saved the life of the girl who next month is to become his bride.

Hears Distress Cry
The couple came to Newport early in the morning to spend Sunday on the beach. Shortly after noon Miss Wishart decided to swim. Her husband-to-be decided to remain on shore.

Defying her sweetheart to pursue her and then taunting him, the girl went into the water and swam about for some time.

Suddenly Dillinger saw his sweetheart throw up her arms and then cry aloud.

Forgetting his handicap, Dillinger plunged into the surf, casting off part of his clothes as he went. Then began a struggle between one who did not know how to swim and a dangerous riptide. It was not until Dillinger reached his sweetheart and had brought her to safety that he realized that he had in a moment accomplished what he had been trying to do for years—swim.

Miss Wishart was revived by life guards and was able to return to her home last night, not much worse for the experience.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The American government has not threatened to withdraw its minister to Bucharest, threatening to withdraw unless a mining law jeopardizing American property is withdrawn, the Rumanian government is not conciliatory, emphasizing its sovereign right to pass its own laws, according to dispatches from the Rumanian capital today.

This government is considering asking Peter Augustus Jay, the American minister at Bucharest, to return to Washington to report fully on the oil law, but it was declared this should not be interpreted as any plan to withdraw permanently this country's representative.

Although the state department is as yet without the official text of the Rumanian oil law, the statute is understood to provide that within ten years time a majority of the stock of all oil companies in Rumania must be owned by Rumanians.

The original terms of the law are understood to have provided for national ownership of sixty per cent of oil interests within six years. These terms are said to have been modified because of the protests of the American government to provide for about 51 per cent ownership in six years.

State Timber Land In Siskiyou and Lassen Counties In Danger

(By United Press Leased Wire) RIVERSIDE, July 28.—Forest fire which has raged in Baptist canyon of the San Jacinto mountains, Riverside county, since Saturday, will be entirely under control by tonight, local forestry officials predicted today.

The blaze, thought to have started from a deserted camp-fire, is being battled by 300 men from Hemet valley sections. So far it has swept over part of House hill and has burned over several hundred acres.

No big timber is in danger, and the fire is confined to foothill brush. Idyllwild, Keen Camp and other resorts are safe, the blaze being 20 miles from the nearest mountain settlement.

A force of men has been stationed on the south fork of the San Jacinto river by the Hemet Water company to battle the flames in case they should jump the canyon. The south fork forms the watershed of the water company's dam.

Fresh fire fighters were sent to the scene today to replace the men who have battled the blaze in a 110 degree temperature since it started.

Being next in line for the throne
Ibid was sent to Oxford when he

After his "stretch" in his maj-

Next year Ibid plans to return to Afghanistan, if it things are to his liking a former tamale vendor may some day rule that country.

Canada War Vets

TORONTO, July 28.—A storm is brewing at Ottawa over the reported dismissal of Canadian war veterans from the dining car departments of the national railways, and the employment in their stead of American negroes at lower wages.

tempt a trip over the rapids and falls in a specially designed rub-

WIDOW GAINS
FORTUNE IN WILL CASE

NEW YORK, July 28.—Mrs.
Israel Finkel, widow of a wealthy dentist, who lives at 1351 Fifty-fifth street, Brooklyn, was planning to take possession of the $150,000 left by her husband, Mrs.
Finkel and her son were cut off with $1 and the entire estate was bequeathed to Miss Carrie Sullivan, a friend of the dentist.

Miss Sullivan ceded her rights to the widow after a hearing before Surrogate George M. Schulz of the Bronx.

Dr. Finkel lived with his wife 14 years. They had one child, a boy. About two years ago the dentist met Miss Sullivan. On Oct. 23, 1923, Mrs. Finkel, through her attorney, Bennett Seligstein, obtained a separation from her husband. The decree was granted by Justice McCook in the Manhattan supreme court.

Dr. Finkel was ordered to pay his wife alimony.

Dr. Finkel died last January.
When his will was opened it was found that he had bequeathed almost all his estate to Miss Sullivan.
One clause read: "To my wife I give only $1." A share in the estate was left to his son. The will was dated Oct. 26, 1923, three days after the separation had been granted to his wife. Mrs. Finkel started a contest, contending that her husband was mentally unbalanced when he made the will.

At the hearing Miss Sullivan listed to the testimony of Dr. Finkel's tenants of an apartment house at 1587 Washington avenue, the Bronx, which he owned and lived in, and heard them as well as half a dozen of the dentist's former patients, recount the eccentric habits of Dr. Finkel during the year before his death.

When the time came for the presentation of a defense Miss Sulvan and her lawyers asked for a conference in chambers. Later it was announced that the will had been broken by consent of both sides and that Mrs. Finkel would get the bulk of the estate. Mr. Sie-gelstein was appointed administrator.

SET LOVE TRAP TO CAPTURE
KANGAROO

WEST ORANGE, N. J., July 28.
—A "badger game" will be staged to capture a big kangaroo which has been leaping through the woods and on the highways of the Pleasantdale Heights section here since Wednesday. John Warner, animal trainer of Newark, is to attempt the capture. His offer to do so was gladly accepted by Chief of Police Patrick Donough.

Warner said the only way to capture a wild kangaroo is to dig a pit and tie a trained female kangaroo beside it. The female is trained to attract the male by her cries. When he appears she jumps into the pit. Then the male jumps in after her and is captured by hunters who rush from ambush.

To the objection that it might not be possible to find a trained female kangaroo, Warner said he had located one in Red Bank.
When it was suggested that the kangaroo is in hope to capture might be a "lady" also, Warner said he hoped for the best.

Several more persons reported to the police that they had seen the wild kangaroo. Shepherd S.
Williams of Gregory avenue Pleasantdale, said the animal was exactly like those he had seen in zoos but he was unable to testify
as to its sex.

SPLITS TOT'S HEAD
OPEN WITH AX BLOW

NOGALES, Ariz., July 28.—
Jose Duron, a Mexican, is in jail here today, charged with the murder of his four-year-old daughter.
Duron has admitted the crime,
claiming the child was not his own police say.

First knowledge police had of the brutal killing was when Duron gave himself up with the declaration that he had killed his daughter. Investigating officers found the little girl's head split in two from a blow with an axe. She died instantly, they said.

Duron was discharged from an insane asylum at Phoenix a year ago.

Calm Young Lady
Escapes Burglar

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 28.—
The calmness and bravery of a policeman's daughter kept a daylight burglar from molesting Mrs.
Russell McWain, 19, daughter of Police Officer Ellis Diver, although he kept her captive in her home for four hours. Finally he ordered her out of the house and then ransacked it.

PREVENTORIUM
CAMP RESULTS
ARE PRAISED

Undernourished children attending the preventorium camp in Trabuco canyon are responding wonderfully to the treatment they are receiving, according to declarations made today by those who have visited the camp recently.

It was said that many of the "campers" are gaining in weight as the result of the open-air exercises and the scientific feeding being followed.

As an encouragement for the children to consume the greatest amount of food possible, stars are credited to those leaving clean plates. This plan, it was said, has stimulated a rivalry to carry out the plans of Miss Amelia Meagher, superintendent.

J. B. Bichan, county dairy inspector, visited the camp yesterday, and he stated a visit would cause one to appreciate the work being undertaken there to build up the strength of the children.

"Though not suffering from any disease," the inspector said, "all are under weight and in such a state of health that resistance to disease is lowered, making them possible victims of most any disease that happens along."

"Only those who have seen what has been accomplished can fully appreciate the efforts of the persons responsible for the work. A lively community interest in the camp would encourage the workers."

"The main object is to bring the children up to normal weight. The best of food is provided. Butter and eggs are used plentifully. Each child consumes a quart of milk daily. They are taught dietary rules, cleanliness and personal hygiene. Charts and cards are kept for each child, so that progress can be noted and each case studied."

As a result of the visit of Bichan, the camp has a flag pole, and the flag given by members of the county health department floats from a mast.

Each morning and evening the children had been going through the ceremony of saluting the flag, only there was no Old Glory to salute until Bichan installed the pole.

Friday a delegation from Huntington Beach visited the camp and gave some health talks and offered prizes for the best score cards, best-made health books and best-kept rest periods.

Representatives of the Woman's club at Anaheim also were present the same day. They took with them supplies for the camp.

Saturday the Excelsior Creamery company provided a truck to take the children out for a picnic.

Women Use Tape
To Bind Body and Get Supple Shape

PARIS, July 28.—Adhesive tape bound tightly over the body is a substitute for corsets to obtain a new slim silhouette, which is the latest fashion. Even rubber cin-tures and girdles fail to give the supple shape necessary, so society women now mold themselves into fashionable form, using swaths of absorbent cotton and stretching adhesive tape tightly over it from the hips to the bust.

Cyanide Poison
Is Fatal to Two

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Investigation of two fatal accidents in which cyanide poisoning caused death was underway in different parts of the county today.

Konstantine Walter, 21, a Whittier college student, died from inhaling cyanide fumes while working in a citrus fumigation crew in an East Whittier grove.

Aurelio Abonte, 24, an employe of the California Cyanide company, of Huntington Park, died when a hose slipped from a tank of the poison, spraying him with the mixture.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—During the first three months of the year $403,998 worth of mah jongg sets were imported into this country from China, department of commerce figures show. This is six times greater than the amount imported during the same period in 1923.

BOY TESTIFIES
FOR STATE IN DEATH CASE

o'clock this morning, a decision was reached to spare neither the parents nor the boys the shame and pain of parading before Chief Justice Caverly, sitting as judge and jury in the judicial hearing, the misdeeds of Nathan and Dickie.

Darrow had hoped to spare the parents of Loeb, who are ill in their retreat at Chalevoix, Mich.
He hoped also to save Nathan Leopold sr. the humiliation of taking the witness stand to reveal the fantastic career of his son.

Life of Crime
Conferences of the defense were held nearly all day Sunday for the purpose of smoothing out the details of its case, due for presentation Tuesday. A last conference was being held in Dar-row's home when a Chicago newspaper blazoned out with the heralded secret report of the defense attorneys' examination of the prisoners. This decided Darrow to call every one with any knowledge of the past of the youths to the stand.

The report, made by Dr. H. S.
Hulbert, Chicago, and Dr. Karl
M. Bowman, Boston, psychiatrists, showed the youths led a life of crime from early age, climaxing with the murder of Robert Franks. They were prompted by the urge for excitement and not gain, the report states. Loeb is pictured as the master mind, with Leopold, heretofore held the leading spirit, in the role of accessory.

BRIDE CONFESSES
TO $100,000 THEFT

DETROIT, July 28.—Mrs. Herretta Basel Rhode, bride of a few weeks, confessed to embezzling $10,000 through padding payrolls of the company by which she was employed, according to Assistant Prosecutor James B. Ferguson.

She named a high official of the E. W. Bliss Machine Co. of Brooklyn as an accomplice, it was stated.

Mrs. Rhode was local representative of the Bliss company.
She confessed, Ferguson said, that the practice was started seven years ago.

The theft was discovered recently when Mrs. Rhode resigned and a special audit of the books was made. Search for her was started immediately.

SENATE VETERAN IN SERIOUS CONDITION

BOSTON, July 28.—Senator
Henry Cabot Lodge, veteran Republican leader in the senate is seriously ill in a Cambridge hospital today following a sudden attack of bladder trouble which resulted in a hurried operation Sunday.

Attending physicians described the condition of the senator as serious but satisfactory.

The senator is doing well for a man of his years, but his age—he is 78—naturally makes his condition serious.

A second operation may be necessary before the patient can be discharged from the hospital. It was feared the senator has been a sufferer from bladder trouble for some time, a condition not uncommon in men of his age.

It is hoped the crisis of the illness will be passed within 24 hours.

BANK CREDIT IN JUNE AMPLE, SAYS REPORT

Bank credit for conducting business during the month of June was in ample supply and relatively cheap, according to the summary of business conditions of the local federal reserve district, made public at San Francisco today by John Perrin, chairman of the board, Santa Ana bankers were informed.

Distribution of commodities at wholesale and retail throughout the district during June was in smaller volume than during preceding months, the report continues. It further says "this decline in general trade has followed by from two to three months the falling off in basic industrial production which appeared early in the spring."

"Declines both in production and distribution have been from the high levels of the late winter, so that, notwithstanding five months' diminishing activity, this bank's corrected index of bank debits (checks drawn against bank deposits) at the end of June, while the lowest measure of general business conditions obtainable, did not fall below "normal" (100) until June, when it appears to have stood at 96.

"The movement of the index which is corrected for seasonal variation, year to year growth, and price changes, has been as follows during the first six months of 1924:

January 105.4, February 113.1, March 104.9, April 103.4, May 103.0, June 96.

"Flour milling has remained active during this period, while petroleum production has, temporarily at least, been stabilized.

"Although the total volume of member bank credit in use in this district has remained at or near the highest levels recorded, its composition has changed steadily toward a smaller proportion of commercial loans to customers and a larger proportion of investments."

70,000 GALLONS OF BEER DESTROYED

CHICAGO, July 23.—Prohibition enforcement officers experienced a day of unusual activity, in which they drained one brewery of some 70,000 gallons of highly alcoholic beer, sustained an injunction against another brewery operated in behalf of the city treasurer, and wrecked distilling equipment of various models in three smashing raids within a few hours.

The last stand of Terry Druggan and Frank Lake, former leaders of the "Valley Gang" in the one-way street district of the West Side and more recently prospering operators of several Chicago breweries were officially recorded in the books of the United States District court as "a pouring party," which disposed of more than 72,000 gallons of high powered beer through the city sewers.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals sustained the decree of the lower court ordering the padding by permanent injunction of the Pilsen Products company and the Peter Hand Brewing company, of which City Treasurer John A. Cervenka of Chicago is president.

Former Santa Ana Girl Returns to Old Home To Be Married

Santa Ana was chosen as the scene of a quiet little wedding Saturday afternoon when Miss Aileen Devine and Henry Gloeckner, both of Pasadena, took their wedding vows before the Rev. F. T. Porter, pastor of the First Christian church.

Miss Devine, daughter of the C. E. Devines of Pasadena, was a former Santa Ana girl and returned to her old home for her nuptial rites. She is a sister of Mrs. Edgar Lentz of West Sixth street and with her fiancé, arrived at the Lentz home Saturday morning.

The wedding ceremony was read by the Rev. Mr. Porter in his study at the church at 3 o'clock that afternoon. Miss Devine chose for her bridal frock, a gray crepe de chine and carried bride's roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Lentz, who wore a little sport outfit of gray and orange. Mr. Lentz assisted Mr. Gloeckner as best man.

The young people will make their home in Pasadena where Mr. Gloeckner is engaged in the contracting business.

New French Coat For Autumn Wear

Here is a new coat, French, of course, that could play a number of roles in any wardrobe. It could be used over afternoon or dinner gowns as well as evening ones, and would also do very nicely as a wrap for afternoon tea or matinee. It is of black satin embroidered in antique design in dull colors. It is lined with gold-colored satin. It may be wrapped closely about the throat or softly rolled as in the photograph.

SAN JOAQUIN DAIRY BUSINESS BOOMING

SAN JOAQUIN, July 23.—Every two weeks $40,000 is distributed among the dairymen of this district, which has been carved out of the desert of the west side. Of a total of 26,600 acres in the district, about 11,000 are under cultivation, and of that acreage 7500 is devoted to alfalfa. All this is a country that five years ago was chiefly sagebrush and jackrabbits.

It shows what water will do. Water here is obtained by pumping. One hundred big centrifugal electric driven pumps lift the water, in some cases, from wells 1-200 to 1,400 feet deep, and of this number of wells eighty-three are going full at the present time. The biggest wells furnish 1200 gallons a minute and the ranchers construct huge reservoirs covering an acre or more to regulate the irrigation. Incidentally, these reservoirs are a source of huge delight to the rancher's family, all of whom take a daily dip.

The local creamery, taking milk from 3500 cows daily stopped making butter some time ago and is now turning out sweet cream for shipment to Los Angeles and converting the by-product into powdered milk. The demand for milk has driven out the hogs; high prices for alfalfa has also cut down hog raising.

Talented Folk Join In Giving Program At Musicale

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Grafton of 1024 Custer street were hosts at another of a pleasant series of musical evenings last Friday night when a number of friends enjoyed their hospitality and an impromptu program of music.

Offering selection after selection was an improvised orchestra in which Miss Mae Grafton and Miss Evelyn Hunton alternated at the piano, Mrs. J. Hinkle and Roy Harp played the saxophone, Harold Singleton the violin, and J. Hinkle, trap drum.

An attractive effect was attained by the use of vari-colored flowers in decorating. Late in the evening Mrs. Grafton, assisted by Miss Mae Grafton, served ice cream and cake.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. J. Hinkle, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Pee, Mrs. D. Hunton, Mrs. William Rouns, Mrs. Lurline Clayton and son Gordon, Miss Eva Jane Hayes, Miss Louise Clare Rouns, M. R. Foster of Los Angeles, Mr. Young, E. Wilson, Gordon Peterson, Roy Harp, Harry Larson, Wayne Larson and Harold Pee.

JUDGE DENOUNCES ACQUITTAL VERDICT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—When two men conspire to rob and one of them kills some one in the attempt, the other is equally guilty of murder, according to law.

But a jury of eleven women and one man in Superior Judge Ward's court reversed this theory when they acquitted William Mallahan. Mallahan and his brother James were accused of assault with intent to commit murder when one of them fired upon Detective Peter Hughes in an attempted holdup on January 21 last.

James Mallahan pleaded guilty and was sent to San Quentin penitentiary.

Following his acquittal William Mallahan rose and began to thank the members of the jury.

"Sit down," ordered Judge Ward, "this verdict is ridiculous."

DIVORCE FOR DEAD MAN IS DENIED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Executors of a dead man's estate cannot cause to be entered in his name a final decree of divorce from the woman, who in his lifetime, was separated from him by an interlocutory decree. Superior Judge Frank H. Dunne so decided in the case of George E. Bennett, owner of a stevedoring company, who died November 12, 1923.

In his will, made in 1919 before the divorce was granted, Bennett had bequeathed his property to his wife, their young son and Bennett's sister.

It is said by attorneys to be the first time the executors of an estate attempted to secure a final decree of divorce for a dead man.

Schooldays Romance Has Happy Ending In This City

A romance of high school days in Roseburg, Oregon, reached its happy conclusion in this city Saturday when Miss Edith Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Elliott of 619 East Third street, became the bride of Glenn Reymers who arrived last Thursday from the northern city.

Saturday afternoon, the young people, accompanied by the bride's sister, Miss Alice Elliott who assisted her as honor maid, and Alphonse Hammon who served Mr. Reymers as best man, motored to the paragon home of the Rev. F. T. Porter, 640 North Van Ness street, where the marriage service was read.

Miss Elliott wore a pretty afternoon gown of lavender georgette crepe with a white picture hat and carried a cluster of fragrant lilies of the valley. Following the ceremony they returned to the Elliott home where they will be for another week after which they will be located in Los Angeles where Mr. Reymers will be connected with his uncle, a Los Angeles business man.

Both young people are graduates of Roseburg high school where the pretty romance had its beginning. Miss Elliott joined her parents and sisters in this city last March.

Leaves Tomorrow For Tahquitz Lodge

Leaving tomorrow for Tahquitz Lodge near Hemet and San Jacinto, Miss Virginia Russell will be joined at Riverside by her friend Miss Given Denevish of Baltimore for a delightful two weeks at the popular mountain lodge.

Miss Denevish is a member of the nurses' staff at Johns Hopkins hospital and is spending a summer vacation on the coast. Concluding the vacation outing, Miss Russell will return to this city and assume her new position under Miss Justine Whitney, county recorder, in the Hall of Records, where her previous work has been under M. R. Weeks.

The Rev. Otto S. Russell also will forsake his ministerial duties at the First Baptist church next week and with Mrs. Russell will leave for Los Angeles where they will spend part of the month of August, reserving the latter part of the month for other vacation pleasures and outings.

Fraternal Brotherhood

Varying their rule of having a pot-luck supper on the last meeting night of the month, the members of the Fraternal Brotherhood will instead hold an open meeting with dancing at M. W. A. hall next Thursday night, July 31 at 8 o'clock.

An excellent orchestra will insure good music for dancing and members are expected to ask their friends to join them. The first August meeting will bring the pot-luck supper, always a happy affair in which all members join.

The first post office in Iowa was opened at Dubuque in 1933.

Laguna Beach Cottage Is Setting For Gay Sub-Deb Party

The eighteenth birthday of Miss Marjorie Blauer, charming sub-deb daughter of the F. C. Blauers was the incentive for a pretty little garden party held recently at their summer home at "Our Village."

A merry group of young people motored down early in the evening to "Crowd In Cottage" from which they went down on the sands at beautiful Crescent Bay where Mr. Blauer and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Butler had three roaring fires in readiness for a weiner bake. As the fires died down, leaving the glowing embers, the young people roasted their weiners to a toothsome turn.

About half-past nine they returned to the cottage where they whiled away the time chatting and playing games in the beautifully decorated garden and grape arbor. Late in the evening ice cream, candy, and birthday cake were served. The clever little favors, which were small maids with large hats made of tinted rose-leaf shells, standing near a butterfly shell, were made by Miss Gladys Pierce, a friend of Miss Marjorie.

Those who motored down to Laguna Beach to offer their young hosts the best of wishes were the Misses Margaret Smith, Mary Beasley, Frances Kaudson, Gladys Finf, Bernice Finf, Venna Goodwin, Rachel Steward, Evelyn Cooper, Gladys Pierce, Dorothy Clarkson, Mary Dunstan and Harold Juell, Lloyd Smith, Bill Beasley, Burt Zaiser, Wilfred Taylor, Adams Hanson, Doris Meyers, Robert O'Brien and Alfred Harvey.

Waxed or oiled cloths should be washed in soda solution and rinsed thoroughly.

Painting Woodwork
Fill up holes in your woodwork with putty, plaster of paris or glue.

Whitens Linen
Linen may be whitened by soaking in buttermilk for two or three days and then rinsing in cold water. If it can be dried on the grass in the sun the results are almost magical.

Takes Away Odor
To deodorize gasoline for cleaning purposes add five or six drops of oil of sassafras to each quart of gasoline.

A little salt and a little soda added to the water in which you keep cut flowers will prolong their lives.

Popular Young Couple Are Quietly Wedded In Mid-afternoon

It was in the presence of only their "nearest and dearest" that Miss Marguerite Galbraith and George S. Chapman took their wedding vows Saturday afternoon at a quiet but impressive ceremony at which the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock, pastor of the Congregational church, officiated.

Much interest has attached to the marriage since both young people are so well known in the city where their engagement has been of much interest to a host of friends. However, the wedding date was kept a secret and the happy pair were speeding northwards on their honeymoon ere the fact of the marriage was made known.

Miss Galbraith wore a smart little black satin frock elaborately embroidered in brilliant colors. A small cloche hat, long gloves and other accessories to her costume were harmonizing.

There were no attendants and the guests witnessing the pretty ring ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Galbraith, parents of the bride, John Galbraith and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Chapman, parents of the groom. After the wedding the party returned to the Gatorath home, 1061 West Fourth street, where a dainty wedding repast awaited them.

The table was gay with pink carnations and at each place were favor baskets of pink bearing wedding bells. Sandwiches, chicken salad, with pickles and olives, coffee and other dainties were served and the beautiful bride's cake was cut by the young Mrs. Chapman.

Late in the afternoon the young people left for San Francisco to enjoy their honeymoon and upon their return will occupy a pleasant apartment which is all in readiness for them.

Mr. Chapman is with the Standard Oil company and his bride has been one of the copyists at the county recorder's office under Miss Justine Whitney.

Vacationists Scoff At Forest Fire Fears

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Munro, of 1722 Bush street, their three children George F. Jr., Margaret and Jean, also Mrs. Munro's cousin Rosa Frank, returned Saturday from Camp Baldy where they spent two weeks in a delightful outing.

"Although we enjoyed the mountain hikes, evening entertainments and the Camp Baldy attitude yet Santa Ana looked mighty good when we returned home," today declared Mr. Munro, stating that the attendance at this popular mountain resort this season is not as good as in former years on account of the fear of the numerous fires reported in the mountains.

"There is not the slightest reason for any such feeling as the patrol system maintained to prevent fires in this territory is practically perfect" is the reassuring message conveyed by the returned vacationists.

Afternoon Wedding Of Keen Interest To Many Friends

Holding deep interest for many former Santa Ana friends was the wedding here yesterday afternoon of Miss Dorothy Ida Bissell, daughter of Mrs. Ripley of Long Beach, and Reginald F. Inwood of Long Beach, son of the Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Inwood of Alhambra, formerly of this city where the Rev. Mr. Inwood was pastor of the First Methodist church.

The ceremony took place at the First church here at 4 o'clock with only the immediate relatives and one or two very dear friends present. The chancel was a veritable garden with its tall ferns and bamboo as a cool background for the bridal group. Large baskets of golden dahlias and gladioli arranged on pedestals, gave a bright touch of color to the attractive scene.

Miss Bissell wore a charming imported gown of brown georgette with cream lace trimming and all accessories to harmonize. Her flowers were golden rosebuds arranged as a corsage.

The ceremony was read most impressively by the bridegroom's father, the Rev. E. J. Inwood, assisted by the Rev. Alfred Inwood of Glendora, uncle of the groom and brother of the officiating minister.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy young people departed for a very brief honeymoon to be followed by a return the latter part of this week to a cozy apartment which awaits them at Long Beach. In September they will take a more extensive journey, planning to spend the greater part of the month in the northern part of the state.

Among the relatives gathered for the event were the Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Inwood of Alhambra, the Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Inwood and Miss Esther Inwood of Glendora, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Armstrong and children, Janet and Edwin, of Eagle Rock, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Brown of this city. Mr. Inwood is an architect associated with M. R. Gaten, a contractor of Long Beach, who with Mrs. Gaten and their children, were included among the guests.

SON TROUBLED WITH PIMPLES

On Face For About a Year. Healed by Cuticura.

"My son was troubled with pimples on his face for about a year. They were red and festered and scaled over. The pimples itched causing him to pick them, which made them worse, and his face looked badly. He read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped him so he purchased more, and in about six weeks he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Rose Waterman, Teton, Wyoming.

Clear the pores of impurities by daily use of Cuticura Soap and occasional touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed to soften, soothe and heal. They are ideal for the toilet, as is also Cuticura Talcum.

Sample Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. E, Boston, Mass. Send no money. Soap 25c, Ointment 25c and 50c. Talcum 25c." Try our new Shaving Stick.

Santa Ana

Are You Fair to our Santa Ana Merchants?

WHEN money is slack; if crops fail; when credit is needed, it is our home merchant whom we seek for friendly service. He tides us over and provides us with reliable, guaranteed merchandise fairly priced.

In short, he "holds the bag for us" and deserves ALL our patronage in times of plenty as well as in days of stress.

Isn't it a pity that there are many who use him only as a leaning post—to tide them over the slack days and use their cash to fill the coffers of other houses, who have no personal interest in them.

We all need the merchant—we need his confidence, his friendship. Our city needs his enterprise—the service he renders in handling goods that he is here to stand back of, day in and day out—the support he always lends to the upbuilding of everything worth while in Santa Ana.

Let's give him our cash when we have it. Let's pay his bills promptly. Let's earn, and merit the confidence he has placed in us and in our Santa Ana. Let's support him—we need him and he needs us, our trade and our unselfish goodwill.

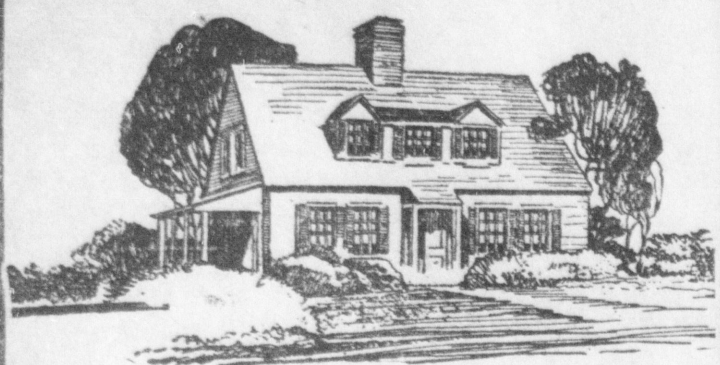

"be fair!"

South Santa Ana Homes Flourish

Today South Santa Ana is flourishing like a boom oil town. A small town now stands at the south extreme of the city east of Main street. Before the end of the year scores of homes will dot an area that was but an outlying field in 1923.

The development of Santa Ana's industrial area and the completion of a municipal campaign to insure industrial sites at guaranteed prices are behind this newest growth. The Standard American Glass Co., first big company to proffer labor to hundreds, is pushing forward with all energy to bring about completion of its plant.

Not only builders but investors see the advantage to be gained in South Santa Ana property. It is reliably reported that a number of the homes now under construction in that section already have been marketed.

This tremendous growth below Santa Ana's "Mason and Dixon line" is no myth. Today the Santa Ana Lumber Company is supplying the materials for 19 new homes in Santa Ana south of McFadden street. A few short years ago McFadden street marked the southern extreme of the city. Of the homes now being supplied by this company, four are Spanish stucco, while the remainder all are five and six room California bungalows—all homes of real worth.

While all of Santa Ana grows, north, south, east and west, it seems that South Santa Ana grows prodigiously.

There are several answers to the question which may arise from this situation. Santa Ana is sound financially. The city's real estate is maintaining its worth. The community has launched wholeheartedly an era of industry. Investors have seen all this and their READINESS is the answer to the question.

S. H. FINLEY, CANDIDATE HAS HAD ACTIVE, USEFUL LIFE
S. H. Finley, candidate for supervisor in the First District is one of the best known residents of Orange county and in his long residence in Santa Ana has been active in many enterprises. The county over. He has been forty-six years a resident of Santa Ana, and fifty-four years a resident of California and states that for 200 years his ancestors have been residents in this country. He is the high spots in Mr. Finley's career in his chronological order.

Twelve years county surveyor. Six years city engineer of Santa Ana, and had charge of construction of original city water works. Engineer for every drainage district organized in this county prior to his election as supervisor. At different times city engineer of Seal Beach, Huntington Beach, and Newport Beach. Served on city board of education. Four years member of board of city trustees, president of the board during construction of city hall.

He was a member of county highway commission and chief engineer of the original paved road system was being constructed. Member of special committee sent to Sacramento that prevented the legislature from dividing the county and cutting off the southwest section. Member of the Reformation committee. Member of Tri-County Water Conservation Committee.

At one time he was a director of Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce. At present chairman of City Planning Commission. At present member of the county grade crossing committee and planning commission. Member supervisors' committee on public buildings and grounds in Santa Ana. Chairman of campaign for raising $300,000.00 for construction of Y. M. C. A. building.

For eighteen years he was a member of National Guard of California and served four years as Colonel of 7th Regiment. Served during Spanish-American War as Captain of Co. L, Orange County's contribution to that conflict. During World War county manager of United War Works drive in which $100,000 was secured in this county for welfare work among soldiers in France. During World War was county manager of Armenian and Syrian Relief campaign, during which $15,000 was secured. Was assigned to duty in France with Red Cross, but the signing of Armistice five days before embarking made service unnecessary.

Has served as Supervisor since 1916, during which time $6,500,000 has been spent in construction and maintenance of roads in the county and the benefit of his experience in that line of work has been freely given the county.

Prior to his membership on the board of supervisors the proportion of auto tax paid by citizens of Santa Ana was spent on roads of county without reference to roads in which our citizens were directly interested. He asked that he be allowed to designate the roads on which this money should be spent and his associates on the board granted the request. As a result he has been partially instrumental in securing the paving of the following roads: Edinger street, Lyons street, Bristol street, East Fourth street from Mabury to Tustin avenue, Fairview avenue, Mabury street, Santa Clara avenue, Placentia avenue, Richfield Road, Tustin avenue, East 17th street, West 17th street from city limits to Westminster. Improvements of roads in Norhope district and others.

He has served as supervisor without any personal or financial profit to himself as it has been his policy to contribute the entire amount of his salary to various welfare organizations in Santa Ana and vicinity—his salary for last four years being contributed to a single enterprise.

'HUNGRY THIEF' AGAIN RAIDS PANTRY HERE

Santa Ana's "hungry thief" again was brought into the limelight today as one of the suspects who committed at least one of the four robberies reported over the week-end. The robber made a safe getaway after securing loot from C. L. Williams, 1309 South Van Ness avenue; Noel Berry, 2315 Oakmont; M. Reichart, 1116 Halladay street, and R. C. Huber, 804 Halladay street.

City Marshal L. C. Rogers declared that the modus operandi of the burglar with the appetite, who stole large quantities of food from two groceries here a week ago, was used again between 4 and 7 p. m. yesterday at the Williamson residence, where a watermelon, cheese, meat and bananas were stolen while the family was away. Officers who investigated the robbery said the screen on the rear door of the house had been cut, but the "starving intruder" was unable to unlock the door, so had to cut through the screen of a rear window which he forced open. The house was ransacked, although nothing was taken except the edibles.

The home of M. Reichart was entered through a French window after the burglar had cut the screen. A child's bank containing several dollars in silver was all that has been missed, Reichart told the police today. The house was ransacked yesterday afternoon while the family was motoring.

R. C. Huber was away from home only for thirty minutes yesterday afternoon, he told the officers, during which time thieves broke into the house and stole his gold watch and chain and several dollars in silver.

While Noel Berry was out in his automobile yesterday, the lock on his garage was broken and his lawnmower and a suitcase were taken, according to police reports. The officers have several clues, Rogers announced.

Court Airing of $406 Dispute Is Due Tomorrow

The Collection Service corporation of Los Angeles holding an assigned claim of $406.40 against the Seal Beach Oil company, today was making ready to press its case in court, trial of an action brought against the oil company being scheduled for tomorrow at 10 a. m. before Judge Z. B. West in the superior court here.

The collection agency brought suit on a claim assigned to it by the U. S. Tool company. In its answer to the suit, the Seal Beach Oil company alleged that it had agreed to pay the sum mentioned to the tool company from proceeds of the sale of certain personal property. Such sale is pending, but has not been consummated, the oil company declared.

SAVE PAIR WED ALREADY FROM MORE RITES

Juan Medina, local Mexican, was saved today from double matrimony—certainly from paying for a wholly unnecessary marriage license and ceremonial fee.

When Juan and the "lady of his choice," Sabina Sandoval, were married here on the morning of May 1, 1923, Papa Sandoval promptly vetoed the romance and, that afternoon, wrest his 29-year-old daughter from the possession of her bridegroom.

The couple yielded meekly and accepted parental law as the real thing. They thought their marriage was in this way legally as well as practically annulled.

Today, having in the meantime either won the consent of the bride's father, or circumvented him, Juan and Sabina again appeared at the marriage license bureau and applied for a new license. Court Interpreter Charles C. Carrillo happened to pass and observed them. He recognized Medina as a previous visitor at the bureau and stopped to make inquiry. Learning details of the story he halted issuance of the superfluous license and informed the astonished couple that they were already and still legally wed, despite the law as laid down by Papa Sandoval.

Juan pocketed the $2 license fee and escorted Mrs. Medina homeward for a belated honeymoon.

5 SOLONS HOLD STANTON CITY DESTINY IN VOTE ROW

Disincorporation Verdict Due Tonight; See Aug. 22 As Final Municipal Day

ALL BOOKS BALANCED

No Debts Due Nor Incomes Listed; 13 Year Regime Shows Good Roads

By the mere holding of an election an Orange county city, it appeared here today, literally will be wiped out of existence. August 22, the tiny municipality of Stanton will disincorporate. Such will be the case if the board of trustees of Stanton follows the advice of its city attorney, Horace Head, who will inform the board tonight that in his opinion the election held last Tuesday was legal, despite the fact that the ballots were not correctly drawn.

Controversy arose over the legality of the disincorporation election through the peculiar manner in which the propositions were printed on the ballots, which read:

"For disincorporation, yes."

"Against disincorporation, no."

To Wind Up Business

The result of the election showed 167 voted for the first proposition and forty-five for the second.

Head contends the voters expressed their desires, despite the error in the ballots and therefore the election was legal. Should the trustees follow the advice of Head, the little municipality will go out of existence thirty days after the date of the election. In other words thirty days will be given the trustees and city officials to wind up the business.

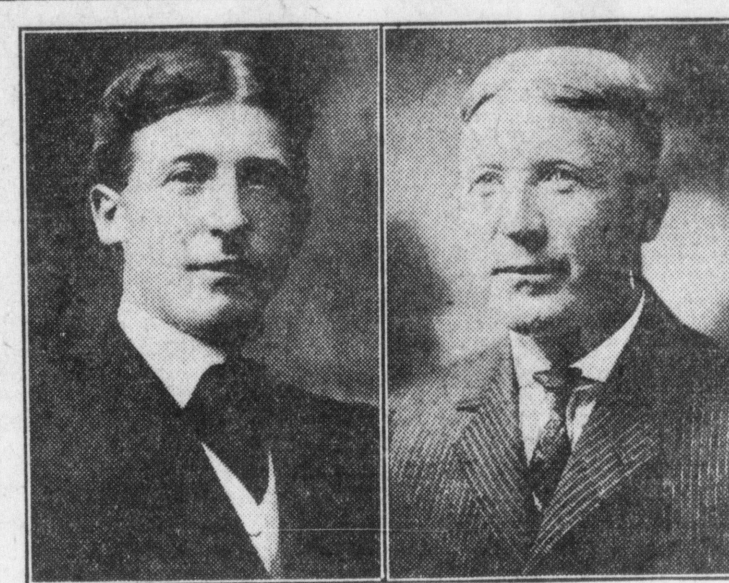

For more than twelve years Stanton flourished as an incorporated city, and purchased a city hall and two lots in another part of the city. Early this year the city hall and the two lots were sold for $1800. Most of this money, like all the revenue from taxes and other sources that wasn't used to pay minor bills, was converted into good roads. All the corporate city has to show for thirteen years of existence is good roads.

All Money Collected

All the taxes have been collected to date. There is not one penny due the municipality. All the bills are paid with the exception of a few little items. What money is left in the treasury when the city goes out of existence will be diverted to the general school fund. It is said the school fund will not be enriched to any great extent.

The estimated population of Stanton is 1000. A new board

USES AUTO AND NOT CYCLE NOW; SEES AIRPLANE ERA FIRST CAL. RURAL MAILMAN

Charles Johnson, Santa Ana mailman, first rural carrier in the state as he was photographed 24 years ago, (at left) and now, known by every one on R. D. 1.

Twenty-four years ago, Charles Johnson, 606 South Broadway, Santa Ana, received the distinction of being named California's first rural postman. Then he delivered his route on a bicycle. Today, this distinction still is his, of course, but in addition he now is the oldest rural mail carrier in the state, in point of service, and he has carried his present route for more than a score of years. His vehicle is an automobile.

"Retire? not me; I expect to carry mail for the next twenty-one years," Johnson replied to the natural first question. "Then maybe I'll retire. There is a law that allows a man to retire when he is 65 years old, but I'm only 44."

"You see, I began carrying mail when I was 20 years old."

"Back in 1900, I was a mail carrier at Fullerton. It was at this time the government decided to try out the rural mail system and the first rural route in California was sent out to the oil fields from Fullerton. I carried that route, because I was living in Santa Ana, so I got permission to open a route from Santa Ana. I instituted No. 1, and have been carrying it ever since."

For three years, Johnson stated, he delivered his rural route on a bicycle. "I even delivered the Christmas mail one year on a bicycle," he added, "and believe me it was some job. Then I delivered mail on horseback for awhile. The mail began to get heavy and after seventeen years I used a horse and buggy. Now I have an automobile."

Service Makes Work

"Yes, I expect to be carrying mail when the rural delivery men have airplanes, sure I do." Johnson stated that the thing he noticed particularly in delivering mail over the same route for years was the fact that if the carrier gave the proper service his work became heavier. More people write letters, he said, if they can put them in the box in front of their house and mail them, in-

ALLAY FEAR OF MAKING ERROR IN BABIES

Hospital Here Identifies New-Born By Means of Tiny Bead String

Nurses at the Santa Ana Valley hospital, from superintendent to the youngest in training, go to the furthest extent, physicians practicing there were agreed today, in making things comfortable for the central figures in the sacred drama of life—the advent of the new-born babe—that is enacted virtually every day within its bounds.

The first thing the mother wants to know, irrespective of her own comfort, it was pointed out, is an assurance that the child for whom she has given everything never will be taken from her through mistake.

Here, as in all well-regulated hospitals, this infant identification taking but a moment, is made an act of the most importance. Comfort of mind thus is accorded the patient.

No Fear Needed Here

Mothers here never need worry that they will be separated from their own offspring.

A tiny box of beads—beads of white and of blue—see to that.

The white beads have on them the letters of the alphabet. The blue beads are just blue glass beads.

When the child is born into the world the beads are taken from the box. The last name of the mother is strung in the center of a little necklace with white beads. The blue beads are placed on each side to complete the string. Thus, each necklace bears the last name of the mother and of the child.

The head string is of cat-gut and too stout for the baby to pull off. The ends of the string are clamped down to a lead bead with a small pair of pliers, thus making it impossible for the beads to become scattered.

Are Not Harmful

The necklace is placed around the infant immediately after birth and remains there until it leaves the hospital.

When the baby is taken to its mother, the nurse closely identifies it by the name on the beads. The beads are in no way harmful to the babies, some of whom have been known to wear the string for eight months.

The bead strings have been proved the most successful of all identification "tags". At one time it was customary to place a piece of tape around the baby's wrist with his name written on in indelible ink. This system was abandoned, it was said, when the tape after a few weeks' often became somewhat grimy.

Twins Cared For

"Whenever twins are born at the hospital, the letter 'A' is strung with the beads that go around the neck of the infant first born and the letter 'B' goes with the beads around that second born," said the "baby nurse" who explained to The Register reporter the systems employed to allay the possible worry of mothers. "When triplets are born the same system is used with the letter 'C' placed on the bead of the third born."

Only one set of triplets has been born at the hospital here in the last ten years.

Twins, however, a boy and a girl, recently came into the world here. They are enjoying life at the hospital now.

At the present time, it was stated,

TIN CANS GIVE CITY COUNCIL MUCH WORRY

Plans For Site Altered As River Uncertain Element; May Ask Short Delay

Empty tin cans promise to block plans of the city council for utilizing a portion of the city's old sewer farm, on South Sullivan street, as public dump ground for city trash, it was indicated today by W. G. Knox, city engineer, a member of the council committee appointed recently to make investigations of a new location for the dump grounds.

According to the engineer, directors of the Newbert Protection district have made objection to the dumping of old tin cans in the river, as was contemplated. It was shown that at high water periods the cans would float down stream and into the ocean. Some years ago, it was recounted, the district was threatened with a damage suit by Newport Beach because cans at a former dump had floated downstream and been deposited in Newport bay.

"We are conducting negotiations with the directors and may be able to arrive at a satisfactory arrangement," Knox said. "It is possible the committee tonight will ask the city council for one more week for consideration of the matter before making a definite recommendation as to new grounds."

It was understood the committee will definitely recommend that the contract with Harper brothers for the present dump grounds on West Fifth street be cancelled at its expiration, September 1.

CATALINA CITIZENS FACE RUM GRILLING

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Evidence gathered by George Contreras, county dry enforcement officer, during his investigation of Catalina island, was to be laid alleged bootlegging activities at Catalina island was to be laid before District Attorney Keyes today.

As a result of the probe of an asserted rum ring on the island, which came to light with the arrest of Chief of Police Halstead on a charge of entering a resident's house and decamping with ten cases of liquor, at least five men leaders of the business and social life at Catalina, will be called before the grand jury, it is predicted.

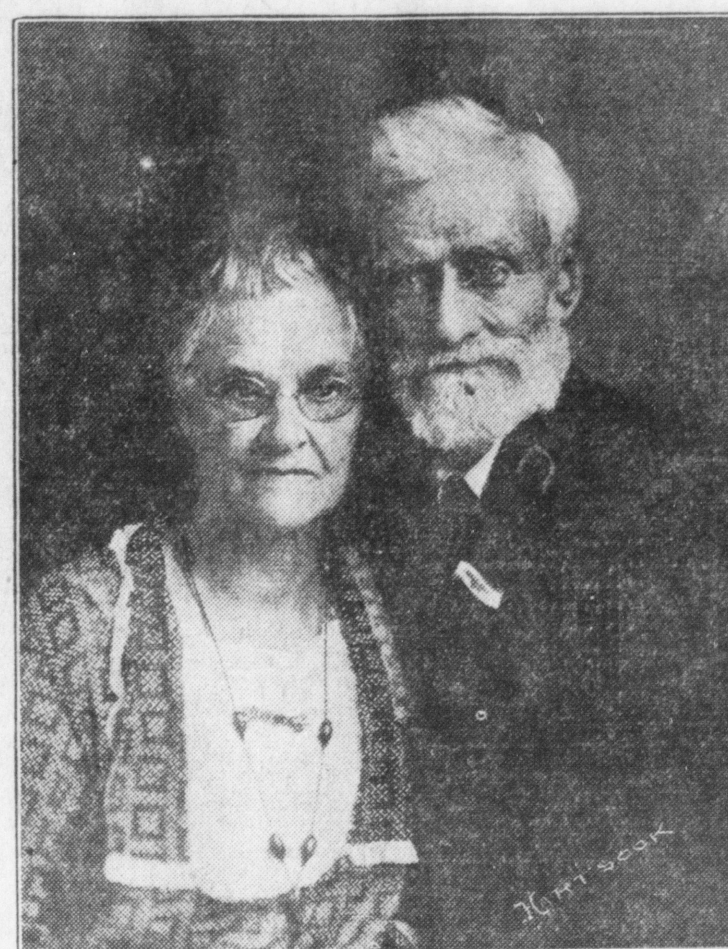

Halstead was dismissed from office as Police Chief and L. L. Adler named in his place. Halstead, who had stood guard over the house since he seized it, gave it up to Contreras yesterday.

ed, there are only eight babies in the nursery.

"Sometimes," the "baby nurse" said, "there are as many as fifteen babies here. Then again the number dwindles down to six or eight. There hasn't been a time in the last ten years when there wasn't at least one child here."

MAN, 84, WED TO WOMAN, 68. AGREES LOVE IS NOT MORE ROMANTIC TO WOOLERS OF 18

MR. AND MRS. CLARK CAMP Formerly of Santa Ana and recently wed here.

When one has nine children living and one's fiancée has three living it's not easy to elope and keep the wedding a secret.

At least that's what Clark Camp, 84, deaf, and his bride, Mrs. Alice Dormer, 68, and blind, made known today.

This aged couple, "escaped" from their children recently and came to Santa Ana. In the presence of County Treasurer J. C. Joplin and his clerk, Gladys Field, they were married.

Seven years ago Camp was a resident of Santa Ana and lived on East First street. At that time Joplin purchased a mountain ranch from Camp and his son-in-law, Charles A. Blake. So when Camp decided to marry he made his way directly to his old friend, Joplin, and in the latter's office the ceremony was performed, Judge Jack Landell pronouncing the words.

It was an elopement and was to have been kept a secret, but the couple made the mistake of going back to Long Beach. Now their children have learned the truth.

Two-Year Courtship

An acquaintanceship ripening into love, followed by a two-year courtship, climaxed by an elopement to escape the criticism of their children, is the romantic story of Mr. and Mrs. Camp.

To them their romance and marriage is just as wonderful and brings with it the same romantic thrills they experienced when they were "sweet sixteen." They have passed the first flush of youth, but their "lavender and old lace" romance glows just as brightly, if less tempestuously.

"Don't let anyone tell you that one cannot love just as romantically and just as strongly at 80 as they can at 18," Camp said. "Age is not a matter of years, but a matter of mind, and if the heart is young, what matters age?"

Mr. and Mrs. Camp have been close friends for many years before they lost their respective mates. The families, both of which lived in Covina, used to visit each other and during those days the former Mrs. Camp was a great admirer of Mrs. Dormer, now Mrs. Camp.

The present Mrs. Camp lost her eyesight more than twenty-two years ago, but that did not prevent her rearing and educating a family of nine children, doing her own housework and cooking and making fancywork for her neighbors. Her last child was born after she became blind and she has never seen him.

It was this determination not to be a burden because of her affliction which endeared her to scores and served as inspiration to those inclined to be discouraged because of some minor trouble.

Following the death of his wife,

COUNTY PETROL INTERESTS PAY ONE-THIRD OF TAXES HERE. IS RECORD

Oil Companies Assessed at $50,000,000 Figure For Present Annum

IMPORTANCE IS SHOWN

Mineral Rights Holding Up Well, Showing Decrease of But $1,500,000

Orange county's oil interests pay more than one-third of the county's taxes.

This fact was shown here today in assessment figures provided by County Assessor James Sleeper. The oil companies, Sleeper's records disclosed, were assessed at more than $50,000,000 this year. The total assessed valuation of non-operative property for the county was $144,298,445.

The importance of the oil industry was thus revealed, Sleeper said, entirely apart from the tremendous revenue it brings to the county in the form of payroll and profits.

$10,000,000 Personal.

Besides the assessed valuation of mineral rights, which amounted this year to $29,146,160, the oil companies were assessed more than $10,000,000 for personal property. This, Sleeper said, would place the total assessment of the industry above the $50,000,000 mark.

Assessed valuation of mineral rights held up remarkably well this year, Sleeper said, recording a decrease of approximately $1,500,000 over the valuation for 1923, and being slightly more than $4,000,000 less than the peak valuation of 1922, when the market was at its crest.

Comparative Figures.

Figures on the assessed valuation of mineral rights in oil properties of Orange county for the last four years were announced by Sleeper as follows:

1921—$35,554,270.
1922—$43,341,625.
1923—$40,669,360.
1924—$39,146,160.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXES TOTAL $1,000,000.

Footpads and cracksmen who, heretofore, have directed their ambitions toward banks or the county treasury, today realized that they were making a mistake in not retracing the route of County Assessor James Sleeper.

Figures announced by the assessor today show that his office has been collecting an average of more than $1,000,000 per year in taxes upon unsecured personal property.

During the last four years, 1921, 1922, 1923 and 1924, total collections from this source, amounting to $4,242,983, have passed through the assessor's office.

Automobiles, furniture and any other form of personal property owned by persons who do not own real estate, Sleeper stated, are taxed in this connection.

The sum of $1,130,000 was the amount so collected this year, a slight decrease as compared to the total for last year, but greater than 1922, the records show.

The totals for the last four years were announced as follows: 1921, $1,171,394; 1922, $1,127,307; 1923, $1,171,394; 1924, $1,130,000.

MISS ALIAS

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sallie Peck, employee of the Fair Deal Five & Ten, quarrels with her policeman sweetheart, Michael Curran. That night Sallie goes into the yard to take down a washing for Ma Brennan, with whom Sallie lives. A crash shakes the earth and something strikes Sallie a blow on the head.

When she regains consciousness, the girl finds herself in strange surroundings. A French maid calls her Alva Copeland and Ma Brennan, a tall, richly dressed woman, claims her as her step-daughter. Sallie discovers that she has fallen into the hands of crooks and is being substituted for the real Alva Copeland.

A man-servant takes Sallie to the home of a gang of diamond thieves, because he thinks she is a member of the gang. Michael Curran and Captain Trevor bring the police to the Copeland home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"She chided me for breaking in on her and then wanted to know what was going on and where her daughter-in-law was. She's a Tartar!" he whistled softly.

"That must be Mrs. Stanton Copeland," the captain replied. "I'll get the doc to go up and give her something to quiet her until we can send nurses in for her and her own physician."

"The doctor says there is very little time left," Trevor had risen and stepped back to whisper urgently to Mike. "For God's sake, find out what she can tell us of the Ferret and if she knows anything of that gang!"

A bit of bright color tinged Therese's cheeks and her black eyes were brilliant but bluish shadows were gathering about her lips and a tell-tale dampness beaded her brow.

"Who killed Sloat, Therese? Was it Quarters?" Mike bent over her once more. "What has become of the girl you had here, the one you call Bess?"

A spasm of pain crossed the woman's face.

"It was Fitch! For long have I known him even before we went abroad to bring mademoiselle home. He is young, handsome, he makes love to me and though I am old and ugly—I respond. He desires that I get for him a position here—he is a footman of the best families—and last week I recommended him to madame. He is installed here when we arrive home from the wreck and almost as soon as that girl comes to her senses again I see there is something between them! They look, they whisper together here in the hall, and then while I watch he slip a note under her door!"

The doctor had come from the bathroom with a glass in his hand and Therese sipped from it weakly and rested for a moment with closed eyes but when they opened they flashed fire and her voice rang out strongly.

"I think then I shall go mad! He deceives me, this Fitch! I decide that I shall discover how much he deceives me, and where he goes for an hour or so late each night, when he says it is to gamble, to play the card! Saturday—Mon Dieu, was it only last night?—I follow him. A sedan waits for him around the corner and figure for yourself, a sedan for a footman!—and I am in despair but a taxi comes and still I follow. Doctor, it is so cold!"

"You followed where?" Trevor demanded hoarsely as Mike laid his coat gently over her.

"A long, long way through many streets I do not know. The light was slowly fading from her eyes and her voice had weakened once more. "At last we come to a great park where there is a course of the golf and beyond rows of small, new houses scattered about and one great, old one of brown stone which stands by itself. It is there Fitch enters and I have not long to wait, for in ten, twenty minutes he comes from that house. This time there is no sedan and he walks while my taxi follows once more, but we lose him. It is no great matter for suddenly the park ends and I am in the city once more near an entrance of the subway but where I do not know. I am tired, I have learned nothing and I tell my chauffeur that we return here. When I arrive, Fitch has come before there is a light under his door and I hear him walking—Doctor, the lights have gone out!"

"The end is near. Be quick!" the doctor cautioned in a whisper as he held the glass again to her lips.

"What happened tonight?" Mike motioned the almost distraught Trevor to silence.

"It is discover that the girl we have here is a thief and still I do not believe that Fitch, too, he is criminal!" Therese's breath was coming in great gasps now. "Tonight, M'sieu Sloat he guards her door till the time comes to take her away and I myself have put the drug in her drink that she may sleep—Fitch leaves his room, he has a revolver in his hand, and one in the pocket of the hip—I watch over the stair-rail—he leap upon M'sieu Sloat, he strike him down!"

The voice ceased and only her stertorous breathing showed that Therese still lived but she rallied once more.

"Fitch open the door—that girl, she is waiting—they go—together! What is the hour please?"

"A quarter to two." The doctor glanced at his watch.

"It is one hour and a half that they have been gone, then, for in ten minutes the warning comes from M'sieu Bellows. At twenty-five minutes after midnight madame calls to me and I descend to receive—this!" Therese strove to lift her hand to her wounded side but it fell back limply. "They fear that I talk, you see, though I would have kept silent, but now you know—all!"

"Not all, Therese!" Trevor cried as though by mere force of will he could hold her back from death. "There is something you haven't told us about that house in the park, where Fitch went! Think!"

"That house? The figures, M'sieu means? The figures of stone before the door, the lion and the bull which guard?" All at once she sat up with a ringing cry, "Frederic! Frederick!"

One of the detectives had sprung forward but all eyes were on Trevor as she slumped back upon her cushions and lay with a slight smile curving her thin lips.

"She's gone," the doctor rose. "Captain, shall I see to—?"

"Say, I know that house!" the detective who had thrust himself forward cried excitedly. "It's just beyond Van Cortlandt—an old mansion that used to be occupied by some consul or other. A bald, little old geezer lives there now!"

"Come, then!" Mike roared and leaped for the stairs with Trevor behind him. "Bring all the men you can spare from here, Captain, for there's likely to be a battle! It's the headquarters of the gang!"

CHAPTER XII

Sallie's Apology

SALLIE came to herself with a dull ache in her wrists, a throbbing pain in her head and the echo in her ears of a hoarse agonized voice which seemed to whisper over and over:

"Water! Water!"

She opened her eyes to stare up

AND AT LAST HER HANDS WERE FREE.

at a low, heavily beamed ceiling and slowly her gaze traveled about at ancient stone walls, a modern but damp concrete floor and a huge furnace, black and cold, which stood before her.

A cellar! How had she got here? Instinctively she tried to raise her hand to her bewildered head but the ache in her wrists sharpened and she glanced down to find that they were bound tightly together. In a flash it all came back to her; the bald, weakened old man with the cold, bright eyes who had declared that she was not Diamond Bess, her own vehement agreement with that statement and demand to be set free and the slow smile and shake of the head which answered her before the curt command came to take her away.

"Water!"

So there was someone there, after all! Sallie turned her body over and stared, transfixed.

On a canvas cot against the wall another girl lay, a girl with a mop of coal-black hair and great, burning eyes staring out of a wasted face.

"Hello!" said Sallie. "Where did they catch you?"

The other girl's face twitched in the fitful flare of the single gas jet but only the moaning reiteration escaped her lips.

"Water!"

"Well, whoever you are you look as though you needed it!" Sallie remarked. "Gotta see what I can do—Darn 'em, they've tied my ankles, too, but I ain't fastened to anything. You watch me, sister!"

She lifted her bound arms to protect her head, and deliberately rolled off the cot, landing on the hard floor with a thud which jarred every nerve in her body and made her set her teeth to avoid screaming. For a moment she lay still until the first racking pain had ceased and then started rolling over and over toward the furnace.

A little wailing cry escaped from the other girl as she saw that Sallie was not approaching her but the latter gasped reassuringly: "Just be patient! I'm coming back!"

Not for nothing had she tended the furnace which Ma Brennan had so proudly installed with her first insurance money acquired through the sudden demise of Mr. Aloysius Brennan beneath a wildcat engine. To be sure the clutter of the winter's fires might have been cleared away but Sallie judged that a household like this wasn't any too particular and where kindlings were used there was likely to be an ax to chop them. She rounded the furnace, striking her head smartly against the cold iron as she did so, but the little exclamation which escaped her was one of exultation rather than pain, for there before her lay just the implement she sought. Its blade looked dull and rusted but she was proof against all discouragement now and gritting her teeth as the cords cut deeply into her ankles she maneuvered, after heaving her little young body to a sitting posture, to wedge the head of the ax firmly between her feet with the blade uppermost.

Bending forward, Sallie sawed away at the cords about her wrists while the pathetic moan of the other girl came faintly to her ears. The ax was more dull even than she had anticipated but the strands separated one by one and at last her hands were free.

"THE WHITE SISTER" AT WALKER'S TONIGHT
"The White Sister" has been acclaimed one of the most significant films ever made. The story was taken from the famous novel by F. Marion Crawford and screened entirely in Italy and northern Africa.

Rome, Naples, Sorrento, Tivoli, and even Mt. Vesuvius were some of the "locations" used, and the result, according to critics in the larger cities where the picture has played as a two-dollar attraction, is the most beautiful production yet made.

"THE ARIZONA EXPRESS" AT YOST TONIGHT
A Bloomington, Indiana, motion picture exhibitor who is showing "The Arizona Express" at his theater wrote: "Let us bow our heads and give thanks for Lincoln J. Carter. Most melodrama is just melodrama, but when it bears the name of Lincoln J. Carter it becomes super-melodrama. Some of your patrons may try to ridicule his style, but just keep your eye on those this time have become almost a pair of inseparables, since this is the fifth picture in which they play together. They are known for their splendid performances in other Warner Brothers Screen classics, such as "The Marriage Circle" and "How to Educate a Wife". Louise Fazenda, remembered for her comic sparkle in "The Gold Diggers", and Irene Rich have also important parts. Then there is Theodore Von Eltz, Frank Currier, Eulalie Jensen, Lila Leslie, Charles French and Sidney Bracey.

"Being Respectable" is the story that changed its author from a semi-obscure writer to one whose royalties pour in without pause. It tells of an American family, rich and respectable, grown up with their city from pioneer beginnings. Through this group of outwardly conventional people, the story tells, with revealing seriousness and humor, of the passions and searching beneath the complacency, the bewilderment that underlies the lives of men and women.

Legion Delegates Get Instructions

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 28.—Delegates to the state convention of the American Legion from the local post will receive their final instructions tonight at the regular meeting of the Legion post. A report of the baseball committee will also be heard.

It is expected that the baseball team of the American Legion will play their first game with the Lions club team in the near future. The Legionnaires have been holding regular practice every night during the past week and it was estimated that about eighteen men turned out. Some of the boys were formerly high school and semi-professional players.

L. W. Mitchell, Robert Nutt, James Ross, James Hager, Bus Wardman, Ray Harris, Scott Strachan, Henry Weigart, are among those who have tried out for the team during the past few days.

BEACH PERSONALS. HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 28.—Mrs. O. Newton, Seal Beach; Mrs. J. L. Hager, and Miss Henrietta Hager, of Ontario, and Miss Margaret Cook of Los Angeles were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Mitchell and family Friday afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Ewing and family of this city are on their homeward journey after spending nearly three weeks motoring through Yellowstone national park, according to word received here yesterday by friends.

Miss Elsie Hunt, employed at the local library, is spending her vacation visiting with her parents at Whittier.

Fullerton Pastor Offered Position At Oregon School

FULLERTON, July 28.—The offer of a chair in the public speaking department of Linfield College, Linfield, Oregon, has been received by the Rev. M. E. Bollen, pastor of the Baptist Church, and there is every probability of the popular local preacher accepting the post, it is intimated.

Bollen was prominently identified with religious work in the Pacific northwest before coming south to assume his pastorate here. He came to Fullerton in September, 1922. Dr. Leonard W. Riley, president of Linfield College, is an old friend of Bollen's and the two worked together for some time raising endowments for the institution.

During his term here Bollen has made friends and has been active in many phases of community activity. He is a leading Kiwanian and was one of the local Kiwanis Club delegates at the international conference recently held in Denver.

ANAHEIM, July 28.—Further investigation of the possibilities of having a joint power plant for this city and Fullerton have been put under way by two committees appointed at the session of the Council here and preparations were being made for reports, which will be submitted at the meeting to be held soon in the Anaheim Council chambers with the Fullerton City Trustees.

At the recent joint session, legal representatives of both Fullerton and Anaheim reported that there are at present no statutes in the state which will permit combining of two or more cities for electrical plants or service, although there are such laws relating to water plants and sewers. The committees named here to investigate the situation with a view to taking steps to secure such legislation.

Perfecting a joint organization which would combine all the lines of combined effort and investigation, Mayor E. H. Metcalf of Anaheim was appointed chairman and Mayor H. H. Crooke of Fullerton was named secretary.

According to Mayor Metcalf, Anaheim will continue along the lines already started toward the building of a municipal light and power plant, while it is expected Fullerton will adopt the same plan. In the meantime the legislation being secured at the next session of the state legislature, providing the joint agreement is carried out. The mayor said he believed that such legislation could be secured through the co-operation of various municipalities which also desire a joint arrangement.

Mayor Metcalf pointed out that the advantage of a combined power plant would be two-fold—first and foremost, would be the greatly decreased cost of overhead in operating such a plant, and secondly, the initial cost.

Figuring the maximum amount of power necessary for the present use of the city and allowing for the amount which must be available for emergencies, which is conservatively estimated at 50 per cent, the Mayor declared the same would apply to Fullerton and pointed out that a combined plant could be operated with an emergency capacity available at all times, amounting to 50 per cent, which would mean a saving of an equal amount in the cost of equipment and operation of two plants.

ATTEND LEGION MEETING. HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 28.—Mrs. Malcolm G. Keith and Dr. Bernice Thompson, representing the Woman's auxiliary of the American Legion, and Malcolm G. Keith, Jack Robertson and L. E. Mitchell, representing the American Legion post, were present at the joint meeting of the council of the Legion auxiliaries from over the county which was held at Balboa, Friday night.

FRUIT EXPERTS MAKE TALKS AT ORANGE

ORANGE, July 28.—A general discussion of market conditions at the meeting of the California Avocado Growers' association Saturday in Hewes Park was given an optimistic turn by G. E. Hodgkins, manager of the recently organized avocado growers exchange, when he told how the organization had doubled the price of avocados in ten days.

Big Saving Effectuated. According to Hodgkins, there was an over supply of fruit during the 1923 season. The exchange grew out of the fact that the old association was not a marketing organization and could not handle the situation. In February 1924 the exchange began commercial operation. The price of fruit had dropped to thirty cents a pound and conditions seemed to be getting worse. By establishing themselves as a wholesaler, the exchange was able to effect a doubling of the price in ten days.

But the future, according to Hodgkins, has a great problem to face because of the fact that production is expected to quadruple in the next two or three years. Only a very small percentage of the people even know what an avocado is and a lot of advertising must be done. A lower price, even, may be accepted, according to Hodgkins, in order to introduce the fruit to the public. He emphasized the fact that the avocado is a food and should not be looked upon as a dessert.

In the past six months the exchange has marketed 108,170 pounds of fruit and independent jobbers have sold as much more. This amount has been consumed by only five per cent of the people, said Hodgkins.

Form Research Department. The department of research of the association was explained and praised by Hodgkins, who said that it has been co-operating with the State Department of Agriculture in solving some of the problems of the industry. Chief among these is the problem of utilizing the culls. Experiments in dehydration and canning are being made which are expected to offer an outlet for this fruit.

Following the business session in the afternoon the growers were escorted through the Lemon Heights district on a tour of "inspection." At noon a basket lunch was enjoyed, rounded out with coffee furnished by the Hewes ranch kitchen. Dr. Eymann Huff, manager of the Hewes ranch corporation, welcomed the growers to the park and extended an invitation to them to make use of its facilities for picnicking whenever they chose.

Yorba Linda Man Is Buried Today

FULLERTON, July 28.—Many prominent citizens of northern Orange county turned out this afternoon to pay their last respects to the memory of C. W. Blattner, prominent Yorba Linda rancher, 55 years of age, who died suddenly last Thursday. Funeral services were held at the Elk's lodge room in Anaheim in charge of the Anaheim lodge of which the deceased was a charter member. Interment was in Loma Vista cemetery, Fullerton.

Active pall bearers were: Fred Kline, George Taylor, Joseph Wagner, Victor C. Robertson, Leo Thomas and Sam Newman. Those who acted as honorary pallbearers were: J. W. Newell, C. A. Price, N. W. Miller, T. L. McFadden, A. L. Lewis, W. Berkenstock, Leon Myers, H. G. Ames, C. Anthony, Louis Jacobson, A. H. T. Osborne and H. G. Tuffree.

The Rev. Walker Thornton of Fullerton, assisted in the services. Members of the Am I T at chapter, O. E. S. of which Mr. Blattner was chaplain, attended in a body.

Fullerton Chamber Directors Meet Leaders of Secessionists

FULLERTON, July 28.—Appointment of a joint committee to conduct a thorough probe of the complaints of outside sections against the administration of the Fullerton Union School district has been decided on following a conference between directors of the local chamber and members of the high school board.

Exchange Views. The directorate sought an interchange of views and a frank talk with the trustees in an effort to promote more harmonious relations between the latter and aggrieved representatives of the rural and semi-rural districts which belong to the union. Agitation against the board had reached a stage where Brea and Olinda had formed a coalition with a view to breaking away from the Fullerton district.

Chamber representatives were shown over the local educational plant and afterwards expressed themselves as being most favorably impressed with the scope and extent of the equipment and highly pleased with the manner in which the taxpayers' money had been expended. They also said after the conference that they had no criticism to offer as to the manner in which the financial affairs generally had been handled.

Blame Misunderstanding. The directors by the appointment of the investigating committee hope to clear away a great deal of the misunderstanding that is said to have been at the bottom of the whole trouble and by this means to restore harmonious feeling.

Fullerton H. S. TO BEGIN SEPT. 15

FULLERTON, July 28.—Pupils of the Fullerton Union High school will commence or resume their studies on September 15, this being the date set by the trustees for the opening of the fall semester.

Additions to the plant for the coming year will include a new manual training building to cost $4970. Saws and other equipment will be installed. A storage structure is also to be erected by day labor.

A start soon is to be made on the construction of the swimming plunge at the high school.

Miss Clara Stephenson, head of the physical training department, for girls for the past seventeen years, has been granted twelve months leave of absence. She is going to take a course in advanced work at University of Southern California and will also teach in the physical training department at that institution.

NAB PROFESSOR ON SPEED CHARGE

SEAL BEACH, July 28.—Among those present at Speeders' Court was Clark H. Reid, principal of the Huntington Beach schools. He was up before Judge G. H. Morrison for speeding at the intersections of two highways. Before taking the stand, Mr. Reid was championed by Clarence J. Smith, principal of the Seal Beach school.

Mr. Smith stated that he had known the offender for many years and had ridden with him a great deal and had found him to be a very careful driver and not at all careless and reckless in the handling of a car, that they were riding together at the time and Reid was not the one who was speeding.

"You were apprehended for violating the motor vehicle laws. What do you have to say for yourself? Guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty," Reid said. "Do you know that a person in your position should be an example to the younger generation? If you are guilty of a misdemeanor you should pay the fine. The court sentences you to ten days in jail."

Special Prizes Are Offered For Boats Decorated Entirely By Girls

BALBOA, July 28.—Five major prizes, all silver cups, have already been secured for the Tournament of Lights at Balboa, August 2. This annual event, one of the biggest features of the summer season on Newport Bay, has been carried on for several years and draws hundreds of boating enthusiasts to decorate their craft in competition for the valuable awards made for every kind of entry.

Five main classes—yachts, motor boats, barges, row boats, and canoes, have already been grouped and the best decorated in each class will receive one of the silver cups; in addition to these, dozens of additional prizes will be awarded to those who place.

Special prizes of silver candlesticks will be given to classes of boats decorated by girls and other valuable trophies are for unique and original work and ideas. An added feature of this year's event will be a display of fireworks to be shown before the parade of boats starts on its tour of Newport Bay.

Another display will mark the return of the illuminated craft in procession to the starting point. Efforts are being made to have the Vitagraph Picture company illuminate from main to kelson the two great old-time ships which are now in the Bay, having been made over for one of the big feature pictures which the Vitagraph people are producing. Arrangements for the Tournament of Lights are being carried on by committees of prominent citizens of Orange county, with J. A. Beek as chairman of the general committee.

PAVING PROGRAM AT ORANGE RUSHED

ORANGE, July 28.—Steadily munching its way along a four-mile route, a steam shovel, used by George A. Simpson, paving contractor, in carrying out Orange's $160,000 paving program, today, having completed its journey along Cambridge street to Palmyra avenue, shifted activities to Almond avenue.

With greedy bites, the machine has started to excavate Almond avenue and will proceed west to Cambridge street. The machine will then travel down Orange street to Palmyra avenue, catching Washington avenue to Glassell street on its return journey.

Grand street is then scheduled to receive attention, according to plans disclosed by City Engineer C. C. Bonebrake. Excavating work will begin on curb to curb but when the actual work of paving begins only one side will be done at a time so as not to entirely discommode traffic.

Bonebrake declared the pouring of concrete was scheduled to start by August 10 at the corner of Cambridge street and Palm avenue. Approximately forty blocks are included in the program, which is not expected to be completed before January.

2 Story Building To Be Constructed By Fullerton Man

FULLERTON, July 28.—The erection of a two-story brick business block on Commonwealth avenue, a short distance east of the intersection of the business district along Commonwealth avenue, the widest thoroughfare in this city, will have accommodation for four stories on the ground floor with offices overhead.

Mr. Ammerig, owner of a number of the leading business blocks in Fullerton. He expects to go ahead with the new building on his return to the city in the autumn. He and his wife plan to leave early in August on an extended tour which will likely embrace the principal countries in Europe.

Orange Shipments Total 160 Carloads

FULLERTON, July 28.—Shipments of oranges by houses affiliated with the Northern Orange County Citrus Exchange aggregated 160 carloads last week. It is expected that another 150 cars will be moved from Fullerton during the next six days.

More lemons are being sent out from here, following a big improvement in the eastern markets. Local houses figure on shipping 335 cars next week.

Campbell, of the Methodist camp ground was today recovering from injuries sustained when the cap of the Pacific Petroleum company well which he was tending was blown off, throwing sand and oil into his face and eyes with great force.

Officials of the company declared that about 300 pounds of gas pressure was on at the well.

Miss Thelma Moran, 10 years old, was severely injured while playing on the beach when she stepped on a broken bottle and badly cut her right foot. Several stitches were taken in the cut by Dr. Hawes.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 28.—Five new patrons per day is the record of the public library here, it was announced by Mrs. Lester E. Reynolds, librarian. During the past year 999 new patrons of the library were listed on the registration book at the library.

The public library here now has 10,748 books on the shelves and, according to Mrs. Reynolds, approximately 400 new books, consisting mostly of non-fiction and children's books, will be placed at the disposal of the public during the coming two weeks. The books have arrived but some time will be taken up in the unpacking and listing of all of them, it was explained. Gas, stoves, water and other continued to be excellent during the summer months. School children are to be seen daily looking over books which they intend to study next year. Tourists are also many visitors who are spending the summer here are some of the most frequent visitors.

500 VOTERS AT H. B. REGISTER LAST DAY

Keen Interest Is Taken In Presidential Election At Beach City

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 28.—Approximately 500 people registered here during the last minute rush to register Saturday, it was shown from rough estimate gathered from the various registration places.

Many people who have not taken the time to register during the entire year made haste to get their names on the lists so that they might vote.

"Everyone seems to be interested in the presidential election," said D. W. Huston, of Huston, Suter and Huston, local realtors. Huston is one of the registrars.

Nearly 175 people were registered at Huntington's Saturday, it was reported.

W. O. Day, local realtor and T. B. Talbert both registrars, reported that they registered well over 100 voters each. Comparatively few people have tried to register twice this year in comparison to previous registration periods, it was claimed.

BATHING PARADE DATE UNSETTLED

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 28.—While considerable speculation is going on as to the date and other arrangements for the bathing beauty parade to be held here in connection with the week-end celebrations, no definite action has yet been taken on the matter.

Jack Kilburn, swimming instructor at the local plunge, will be in charge of the parade. Kilburn has advanced tentative plans for the parade among which are the offering of large cash prizes to the winners of the affair, and making it a county event similar to the one staged here last year on Labor day by the Oil Workers' union.

The winner of the bathing parade will also be made queen of the Armistice day parade here, it is thought. Plans have been formulated wherein the winner will only be considered the best bathing beauty in the county but will also be qualified to bear the name of Miss Orange county. The winner will be asked to take the part of Martha Washington in the historical pageant to be put on here by the Legion posts of the county.

Prizes aggregating $500 are expected to be distributed to the winners of the various places in the parade which it is thought will have a unique feature in that girls entering will perhaps be asked to swim.

Several county girls have announced their intention of entering the parade, and little difficulty is expected to be encountered to secure a parade of at least 50 girls.

Several local girls have signified their intention of entering the parade, among them being Miss Hazel Wilson, Miss Gladys Woolley, Miss Grace Wardman, Miss Elsie Archibald, Miss Callie Dawson, and others. Several out of town girls who have been approached in the matter during the past few days have signified their willingness to enter the parade if the rules will allow.

Prominent among the week-end celebrations being given here will be the big parade to be staged Labor Day. Sham battles, carnival features, swimming and diving contests, vaudeville, and other attractions will be offered.

Huntington Beach Said to Attract City Heat Victims

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 28.—"The coolest spot when the weather is hot, is right."

Such are the words of visitors from over Orange, Los Angeles and Riverside counties, who have been flocking to the beach here during the past few weeks. The cool sea breeze, which is always blowing over the city, is rapidly earning for this city the title of indeed being the "coolest spot when the weather is hot."

The slogan was given to the city some time ago following the insertion of city advertising in The Register, and since that time has been drawing considerable attention and comment.

During the past several days several people have taken up their abode on the sand by the beach while others have sought hotel accommodations. Among those to patronize the Huntington Inn were Miss Lucille Radford and Miss Dorothy Duxey of Newport Beach, Miss Annie Laurie Harp of Santa Ana, W. A. Helman, H. W. Herschman and Mrs. Margaret L. Latey of Los Angeles, and Thomas Hayden of Delago.

FISHING REPORTED GOOD

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 28.—A comparatively calm ocean provided excellent swimming and fishing here yesterday and Saturday. Early in the morning hours the surface of the ocean was smooth where during the past two weeks white caps have been visible. A cool pleasant breeze blew in from the ocean. Bathers reported the water to be fine and fishermen were equally enthusiastic about the fishing. Many excellent catches of bass, spot fin, halibut, perch, mackerel, and herring were reported.

"Red" Mitchell Rolls 287;
Local Stars Break Even
With Women Rollers

"Red" Mitchell, member of the Los Angeles Peco Mane bowling team, and "when right" considered the best bowler in Southern California, today held the Santa Ana high score ten-pin record. Rolling against local experts at the A. and B. alleys last Saturday night, Mitchell shot a 287, the highest mark that has been recorded here and only thirteen pins less than a perfect game. The Los Angeles star had ten strikes in a row.

The Peco Mane lady bowlers broke even with the A. and B. All-Stars, winning the second contest with enough to spare to give them team total point.

BOOST TACTICS REVEALED

HOLLYWOOD, July 28.—With the clean-up of motion picture films progressing nicely, producers and publicity men are faced with a tendency in some sections to use salacious titles or exploitation methods of a sensational nature, Will Hays, "Czar" of the motion pictures, told an audience of studio heads, publicity department chiefs and newspaper men here last night.

This latter trend is the big problem ahead of the industry.

This latter trend is the big problem ahead of the industry. Hays said, declaring that "there must be no more misleading, dishonest or calumnious advertising connected with the exploitation of pictures."

NEW YORK, July 28.—What will be Epinard's fate in the international horse duels this season? The great French horse is now in this country training for a series of races against the cream of the American turf.

Epinard's first start will be made at Belmont, the second at Aqueduct, the third at Latonia.

The Latonia event is likely to overshadow the other two in point of national interest because Black Gold, champion three-year-old of the current season, will be listed among the starters.

Climate Beat Papyrus. After the race veteran horsemen expressed the opinion that Papyrus was a much better horse than the result indicated. "No horse can come from one country to another and get perfectly acclimated in less than six months' time," they contended.

How will this theory hold in Epinard's case? The French horse has only recently arrived. In less than two months' time he will be swinging into action against the fastest horses in this country. Will he succeed where Papyrus failed? Time alone can tell.

Epinard is a beautiful horse with every characteristic of a champion. Competent observers say Epinard is a much better horse in every respect than Papyrus, being sounder of legs and much longer gaited. So far the French invader has shown no ill effects and appears to be acclimating splendidly.

Black Gold's Big Race. Some of the thoroughbreds that are sure to start against Epinard are Ordinance, Ladkin, Wise Counselor, Zev, Grey Lag, Mad Hatter, In Memoriam, Chacolet, Chillovie, My Own and Black Gold.

Because Black Gold has had the most spectacular record of any horse this season he stands out as Epinard's foremost challenger, and the meeting between them is likely to excite as much interest as the one between Papyrus and Zev did last year.

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

LINEN FOR COOLNESS
Style has been aptly likened to a window pane through which you look without being conscious that it is there. Whistler, the illustrious painter, expressed the same thought in his familiar remark that "finished work shows no trace of work." To be "dressed up" is quite different from being well-dressed. If a man conveys the impression that clothes are the highest thing in life to him, he sets a low estimate upon his intelligence.

Ease, naturalness and detachment from self, whether inborn or acquired, are indispensable to the expression of correct style.

VISITORS GRAB FIRST MATCH OF SERIES

Two-Run Rally In Closing
Frame Defeats Beanners
By Score of 6 to 4

The Irvine Beannepickers will travel down to Carlsbad next Sunday facing the necessity of taking two games in a row from the Southerners if they would retain their baseball supremacy in these parts.

The opening game of the two-out-of-three series between the two clubs went to Carlsbad yesterday by the score of 6 to 4. After playing the "also ran" role for seven acts at Irvine, the Carlsbad outfit outnumbered its heavy artillery and began peppering "Dutch" Hinrichs right and left. They tied the count in the eighth and drove over two more scores in the ninth for their victory.

The Beannepickers outthrew the visitors but with men on bases, Shadel, the Carlsbad flinger, bore down harshly on the Orange county players and with the aid of sparkling fielding by his teammates always pulled out unscathed.

In the last five frames the Irvine team was unable to score. Johnny Armbrill, Beannepicker center fielder, collected four hits, including a brace of doubles, Rousch Carlsbad shortstop, collected three out of four.

The Irvine crew will go to Carlsbad next Sunday for the second match of the series. Carlsbad is three miles south of Oceanside on the Coast highway.

SANTA ANA-MOVING PICTURES

The fact that the president of a great moving pictures company has announced that he has selected Santa Ana as the site for a great studio proves what the Register has often said—that in many respects Santa Ana is especially well adapted to the moving picture industry. Just off-hand—and even upon careful examination and analysis—we can discover no other place which has so many advantages as a place for making moving pictures.

And of these advantages Newport bay is perhaps the greatest. There is but one Newport bay, and certainly nothing that approximates it as a moving-picture-making factor located as near the mountains and many other important and even necessary factors and conditions.

Then there is Laguna—the only Laguna on earth—and Orange County Park, and San Juan Capistrano, and Lemon Heights and Huntington Beach, and all the hills and plains of the great Irvine ranch and the dozens of canyons, and the mountains, all within from ten minutes' to an hour's ride of Santa Ana.

And Santa Ana a rapidly growing, modern city, affording within itself and its immediate environment a very large variety of industrial and agricultural activity, providing both metropolitan and village scenery and conditions, with a cosmopolitan population from which may be drawn almost any type of "extra," and all in the midst of the very finest of living conditions, both moral and physical.

We believe it would pay Santa Ana to have a competent moving picture producer make a survey of the conditions here favorable for the production of moving pictures and publish and broadcast his report among moving picture producers.

THE LURE OF THE WAVES

Yesterday tens of thousands of men, women and children from all over Southern California answered the call of the waves that break on Orange County shores. Beach resorts were crowded by those who like crowds. Every distant cove and isolated spot along the shore from Seal Beach to San Onofre held its outing population of those who prefer to be a bit apart from crowds.

But everywhere the beauty of the ocean, the beauty of the blue sky, the beauty of promontories and sandy beaches held the visitor, and gave him that rest and satisfaction that comes from a day out-of-doors.

And we are aware of the fact that the attractiveness of our coastline offers us many problems for the future, for the coastline will increase in popularity, and the numbers of visitors will grow year by year.

Too, we commend to the people of this county for thoughtful consideration the proposal of the Santa Ana realty board that steps be taken now to preserve the coastline for the use of the public. There are many years ahead of us, and there are great uncounted hosts of people who will want to answer the lure of the waves, and they should have the opportunity to answer the call.

PROSPEROUS PANAMA CANAL

The Panama canal is continuing its prosperous career. Receipts there for the past year reached $24,290,963, about three times the cost of operation and maintenance. That leaves a pleasing surplus for a sinking fund for amortization of the canal bonds. This huge volume of business is indicative of the true usefulness of the canal. The tolls are reasonable and are levied equally upon the shipping of all nations. That commerce continues to use the canal in increasing volume shows that patrons consider the route well worth the cost.

This is an interesting situation compared with that of the Suez Canal. The Suez canal company is forbidden by its charter to declare dividends above a certain rate. When the charter was drawn neither engineers nor economists saw far enough into the future to realize the money-making possibilities of the canal. So now when dividends start to mount above the prescribed rate tolls must be reduced.

So long as rates are fair, Uncle Sam's way of letting his canal make money for itself seems wise.

ENTHUSIASM FOR MUSIC

Do Americans really prefer jazz to "classical" music? Are they indifferent to the old masters of melody and harmony?

Well, 15,000 people crowded into the Lewisohn stadium in New York the other night to hear an orchestra play Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. It was the biggest musical audience on record. Lines began to form an hour and a half before the music started. There was a riot of enthusiasm. People who could not get in hung around outside, like boys at a big league game, massed about the gates, jammed on top of a little hill near by and listened from neighboring windows and roofs. There was singing as well as instrumental music, but most of the enthusiasm was for Beethoven, the glorious old German whose deafened ears have been dust these hundred years.

They used to say in Cleveland that people there did not care for good music. Yet last spring 50,000 people turned out in one week to hear the Metropolitan Opera company. Evidences could be shown, in almost any city, that there is nothing really wrong with the musical soul of America.

FOREIGN CONVENTIONS

The United States has become peculiarly the land of the national convention. Indeed this might be called an American institution. Nothing has been more characteristic in recent years than the custom of having every group of citizens possessing a common interest of any kind assemble, in person or by representation, at some city or other, once during the year.

Virtually every organized human activity, commercial, industrial, social, political, economic, religious, educational, recreational or otherwise, has yielded to the lure of the annual convention. And by common consent, it has been a good thing. Usually the activity represented has benefited from the assemblage of like minds. Leaders and workers have learned from each other. Good ideas have spread. Contact with other sections and cities has nationalized minds that might otherwise have remained local. The nation has been woven more closely together and made a more effective instrument for big accomplishment along any line.

Now we seem to be passing to a new stage—the world convention. Two big events of that kind have just occurred. The United States sent 2,000 delegates to a world assemblage of advertising men in London and 2,000 lawyers to a meeting of a world bar association in the same city.

This is but a beginning. Conventions, as we have all learned, beget conventions. Americans, once lured abroad, want to go again. We are probably in now for an interminable series of world conventions, in which Americans naturally will play a big part.

It will do America good, and it may do the Old World still more good. When the nations of the world once form the habit of getting together along business and professional lines, they will have fewer racial and political differences.

Many a man has gone far in politics without an electoral college training.

Coast Highway Hopes

Cheering promise is given by the State Highway Commission that within a few months the All-Coast Boulevard between San Diego and San Francisco will be fully opened, although not fully paved. A long legal battle for rights-of-way through the Matibui ranch has been carried to the point where possession is gained. Satisfactory progress is being made on the difficult construction near Point Magu. A contract will be awarded in August for grading the blocked section between Balboa and Laguna Beach, thus making it possible, when this work is finished, for motorists to drive from Long Beach to San Diego within sight of the sea for the entire distance; and, with the exception of about twenty miles, over hard-surfaced roads. The distance from this city to San Diego will then be reduced from 115 miles, by way of Santa Ana, to less than 100 miles, by way of the shore.

Saving in distance between Long Beach and northern points will not be gained to any notable degree by the Short Highway, but this route will enable travel to avoid the congestion of Los Angeles city streets; and the privilege of riding at the edge of the Pacific, with its bracing breezes and its inspiring scenes, is another advantage which will be grasped by those who are touring chiefly for pleasure. Before the complete use of the All-Coast Boulevard of the state system can be enjoyed, provision must be made for relieving the blockade caused by narrow streets in Venice and Ocean Park. The state does not build city streets. Each municipality is expected to care for its own connections with the main highway.

WATCH WATER REPORTS

California faces a serious situation as to water supply. To deny this would be bald deception. Proper urging and warning are being given against wanton wasting of water. There is wise conservation throughout the state. The imperative need to conserve water with extreme care, Californians are rising to the critical situation with earnestness and fidelity, for the most part. Water is being conserved in greater measure than ever before in the history of the state.

But there is a menace even greater than the menace of low reserve supply of water—the menace of misrepresentation and exaggeration. This state could be injured tremendously by systematic broad-casting, with hostile motive, of distorted, groundless reports as to the water situation. Let the word go forth—false word that it is—that California has a water famine; that its available supplies of water are giving out permanently; and that the state gradually but surely is passing into a rainless condition, presaging reversion to desert waste, and immeasurable harm would result.

Watch for the glaring misrepresentations which enemies of California or those who have a grudge against this state, may circulate. Deny these with vigor. Say and do all possible to counteract any expression or impression that would portray California as being hopelessly bankrupt in water supply.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.
IS YOUR CHILD A MIXER

During the examination of recruits for the war, physicians found many young men were rejecting because their chests were too small. Questioning brought out the fact that they had not indulged in baseball, football or other sports because their parents were afraid they would get hurt.

Now it was the proper thing of course for these young men to have obeyed their parents, but it is hard to imagine a normal boy or girl not wanting to play.

From the physical standpoint, then, these young men had suffered because the lungs, and as a natural consequence the heart, could not be real strong. Sound perhaps but not powerful enough for the real battle of life. I've often wondered if these parents realized that they were laying up for that child not only physical trouble, but perhaps even mental.

What do I mean? Well, your commonest form of mental ailment, the one that is most frequently found among the inmates of a hospital for the insane, is one where the individual, although of average intelligence perhaps, has not been able to adjust himself to the every day affairs of life. This is spoken of in the daily papers and you see it frequently in books. It is called dementia praecox.

As it is an ailment of young life a warning word to parents and teachers might be of value. The boy or girl may have hereditary tendencies, and be a little "odd," but proper guidance may make him or her a useful citizen instead of a care, a charge on the community. The boy or girl who doesn't want to play with the other youngsters, or who will not even bother to watch them play, should be patiently encouraged to play with other children.

If this is not done, the youngster will go off by himself. He thus misses the chance to be "in" in the game, or at bat in baseball, or the "seeker" in a game of hide and seek. He really never asserts himself in any way. No responsibility whatever. He doesn't learn to give and take, which is the biggest essential in a child's life, if he is going to learn to "adjust" himself to life.

And thus as the child grows older and pursues this same method of not playing or mixing with other children, the things he needs in the battle of life—courage, resourcefulness, knowledge, and the give and take spirit—are not developed.

Boys and girls who have not played much have not become mental cases, but if there is any such tendency in the family at all, the parent or teacher will be doing the biggest thing possible by encouraging them to mix and play with other children. (Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

Big Question Before London Conference

THE PRIMROSE

Ask me why I send you here
This sweet infant of the year?
Ask me why I send to you
This primrose, thus bequeathed with dew?
I will whisper to your ears,
The sweets of love are mixt with tears.

Ask me why this flower does show
So yellow-green, and sickly, too?
Ask me why the stalk is weak
And bending, yet it doth not break?
I will answer: these discover
What fainting hopes are in a lover.

Nothing But Silver Lining

San Francisco Chronicle
There is a silver lining to the financial cloud the Western farmer was told was hovering over him. It has proved to be all lining and no cloud. The Republican party, being the party in control of the federal government, was blamed by the political malcontents for the cloud, which was to be made an issue in their campaign of destruction. It was to be their appeal for the votes of the Western farmer. But now there is no cloud and the malcontents are without an issue and their ambitions will wither in the sunshine of prosperity. If the Republican party was charged with responsibility for the threatened cloud, it is just as deserving of the credit for the sunshine.

This condition of prosperity is by no means confined to the farmers. It is countrywide. It affects all classes and all sections. It is here to answer the charges of calamity howlers that the national administration was sending the country to the bowwows. The press reports are a continuous record of rising prices, of the resumption of industries, of bountiful crops.

The wheat crop of the Western farmer, according to United States reports, will equal that of 1923. The price has gone to $1.39½, with every prospect of reaching $1.50. The condition has compelled the railroads to rearrange their entire freight movement schedule to meet the demands that are being made upon them by the grain farmers.

In the live stock market, hogs alone have gone up $2 a head within forty-eight hours.

In the last two days cotton has gone from $25.30 a bale to $35.30. The United States estimates of the cotton crop is 11,000,000 bales. One may figure for himself what a $10 advance means to the cotton planter.

Within the week nineteen textile concerns have resumed operations at 100 per cent capacity. The steel mills have increased their ingot production 60 per cent. And so on down the line. What is there to complain about?

Worth While Verse

EVENING IN PARADISE

Now came still evening and twilight gray
Had in sober livery all things clad;
Silence accompanied; for beast and bird,
They to their grassy couch, these to their nests,
Were slunk, all but the wakeful nightingale;
She all night long her amorous descant sung.
Silence was pleased; soon glowed the firmament
With living sapphires; Hesperus, that led
The starry host, rode brightest, till the moon,
Rising in clouded majesty, at length
Apparent queen, unveiled her peerless light,
And o'er the dark her silver mantle threw.

Policies in 1884 and 1924

Fresno Republican

We reprint, on another part of this page, the editorial eulogy of "Forty Years Ago" on the nomination of Blaine and Logan by the National Republican party. A few of us can remember the sort of partisan enthusiasm that could utter and even write stuff of that sort. It is not our political habit in rhetoric today. Nor, we can be equally thankful, is it our habit to indulge in the sort of abuse of political opponents that was to be seen in newspapers and heard on the streets—of Cleveland, for instance, by Republicans, and of Blaine by Democrats. We do not do that sort of thing now. We do not, as in this editorial, speaking of Blaine, say: "Party differences and the calumnies of his enemies within and without the party will be swept aside as straw before the storm-tossed waves of a mighty torrent." It's too bad that we do not have at hand to reprint the parallel boost of Cleveland in some Democratic paper. The result happened to be that Cleveland was elected President with an electoral majority, but a slight popular majority, an indication, if nothing else, that the "masses" were not unanimous for either Blaine or Cleveland, no matter how excited they might have been.

To be sure, they were much more excited in 1884 than in 1924. But that does not show that they were excited to any more purpose. The last year in which there was this sort of "excitement" in Fresno was in the campaign of 1900, when we had street parades and torchlight processions. The Republican procession was distinguished by "the full dinner pail," in which the symbol was filled with hot and somewhat smoky air. On the Democratic side there was an equally noisy, if not quite so symbolic, an appeal against "imperialism." As we have had, since that time, both Democratic and Republican administrations, both anxious for full dinner pails and both equally philosophical and practical on the question of "imperialism," we can see that this sort of "excited" political rancor is not necessarily productive of results.

But we are, in this year 1924, much more intelligent in our view of national politics than we have ever been before. We understand more about the purposes and the differences of parties and more about the hot air of our leaders than ever before. The people of the United States will be in a position and a frame of mind much better this year to choose between Coolidge and the Democratic nominee than they were between Blaine and Cleveland.

America's Sugar Consumption

From Facts About Sugar

During the first six months of 1924 the American people consumed 6,247,000,000 pounds of sugar. This represents an average of approximately fifty-six pounds for every man, woman and child in the country, including, of course, the quantity used in manufacturing products such as candy, ice cream, soft drinks and bakery products as well as that required for ordinary household use.

This is an average of over two pounds per week per person for the whole country. For the six months period the amount used per capita is about two pounds more than during the first half of 1923 and about two pounds less than in the first half of 1922, when consumption of sugar reached its highest record.

While the distribution of sugar is regularly higher during the first half of the year than during the second half, present indications are that the total amount used during 1924 will amount to 11,200,000,000 pounds, or an average of 100 pounds for each resident of the country. Last year it was about ninety-five pounds. Apparently the explanation of the larger consumption this year is found to be in the fact that the average retail price has been from one to two cents a pound less than last year. This year's crop of beet sugar in the Central and Western states and of cane sugar in Cuba, Porto Rico and Hawaii, all of which enjoy a tariff preference in the United States markets, are larger than last year's and the increased supply has brought down the price paid by consumers.

Height, Climate

It is often said that the tallest people are found in the temperate zones, and the general idea is that the English and Scandinavians are the tallest races in the world. If, however, you go carefully into the figures you will find that this is not the case.

The average height of English, Scots and Scandinavians is the same. A full-grown man of each race averages 5 feet 7 2/5 inches in height. The Irish are a fraction of an inch shorter, and next comes Danes and Belgians.

But these are not the tallest races. In the matter of inches, the records are held by Zulus, Iroquois Indians, Polynesians and Patagonians. The last, the tallest race in the world, average 5 feet 10 1/3 inches. Now the Zulus live in a semi-tropical climate, the Iroquois in a temperate one, the Polynesians on some of the hottest parts of the world, while the Patagonians inhabit the Horn and South America, some of the coldest and most miserable places on earth.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 17—A PICNIC AT HAPPY GO LUCKY PARK.

After Mrs. Woodchuck decided to keep her sons, Wally and Woolly, home for the summer, the next thing to do was to find things for them to do.

And my, but they did love picnics!

So one day she said, "Boys, we're going to have a picnic. How would you like that?"

"Fine!" cried all the little woodchucks. "Just fine. Where is it going to be?"

"At Happy Go Lucky Park," said their mother.

I know you'll be surprised at that because the last time Mrs. Woodchuck went to Happy Go Lucky Park she vowed up and down that she never, never would go back again.

But then the days got so hot and Happy Go Lucky Park was so cool that she changed her mind.

"Hooray for Happy Go Lucky Park!" cried all the little woodchucks.

So Mrs. Woodchuck made a chocolate cake and three kinds of sandwiches and ice cream and a meat loaf and salad and fixed deviled eggs and everything, and put it all in a great big basket.

And off they started.

"Good morning, Mrs. Woodchuck," said Nick when he saw them coming. "Let me help you with your basket."

"I don't care if I do," panted Mrs. Woodchuck, for the day was warm and her basket was heavy with goodies.

So Nick took the basket and hid it under some bushes. Mister Woodchuck was to come in the evening in time for supper.

"Do you think it is safe there?"

asked Mrs. Woodchuck. "I would hate to have it stolen."

"Sure," said Nick. "Don't worry any more about it."

Mrs. Woodchuck hunted up a swing and got out her knitting and watched the boys.

Wally and Woolly and Woodchuck had the time of their lives. First they played in the sand-pile for awhile and made tunnels and mountains and bridges and forts.

Then they slid down the sliding board about 50 times apiece.

Next they went in wading in a little puddle pond.

And they all got a ride on the merry-go-round and everything.

All this time something was happening to Mrs. Woodchuck's picnic basket and this was it:

When Nick put the basket under the bushes no one knew that a pair of greedy eyes were watching him.

Those greedy eyes belonged to Reddy Fox, and you may be sure that Mister Fox licked his chops when he saw such a gorgeous meal not 10 steps away, and all his for the taking.

"Um, yum!" he grinned. "I always did love picnics. I'll wait until everybody goes away and then I'll feast."

But just when he was slipping quietly one step at a time toward the basket, Nancy happened along. "Why, somebody's left a basket here," she said. "I'll have to put it where it's safe."

And she picked it up and walked off.

"I'll tell you the rest tomorrow. (To Be Continued)
